

Buddhists Rebel, Peacemaker Out

SAIGON (UPI) — A 26-year-old Buddhist nun committed suicide by fire Friday in the sixth fiery protest against the government of Premier Nguyen Cao Ky.

The self-immolation came as moderate Buddhist leader Thich Tam Chau, who has acted as peacemaker in the South Vietnamese government crises, resigned his church post under fire from monks and nuns opposed to settlement of the power struggle with Ky.

AT PAGODA

The nun poured gasoline over herself at the small Hai Lac pagoda in Da Nang and set herself afire before a crowd of 200 to 300 people. The pagoda is located about two blocks from the Tinh Hoi pagoda, where rebels gave up their fight against the government two weeks ago. The nun was identified as Nu Dien Dinh.

Chau's resignation as rector of the great Vien Hoa Dao pagoda imperiled the existence of the fragile agreement he had worked out with the government to end the conflict.

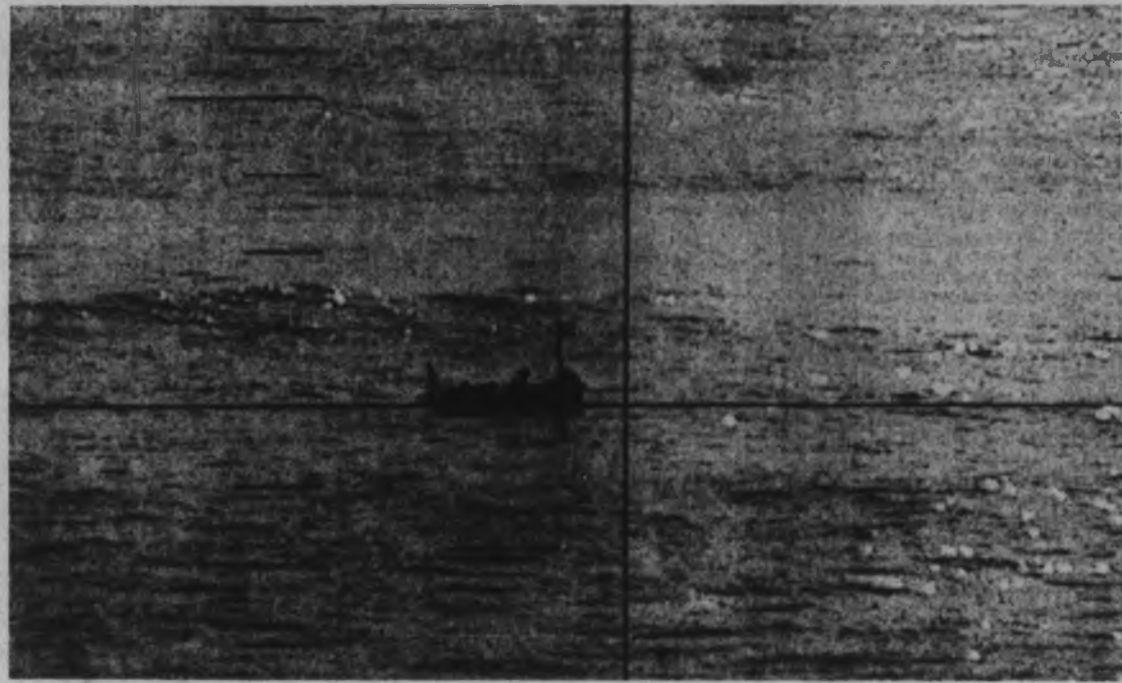

FIGHT ON

He had earlier issued a communiqué claiming that Ky and chief of state Nguyen Van Thieu had agreed to resign when the political settlement reached Wednesday is put into effect next Monday.

Chau's aides said he quit after young monks and nuns rebelled against the agreement and vowed to fight on, burning themselves to death if necessary.

Announcement of Chau's resignation came after a 1000 meeting at the pagoda on the 2510th.

All Town's Panes Shattered in Blast

MUIDEN, Holland (Reuters)—An explosives factory blew up Thursday, shattering every window in the town. Scores of persons were injured by flying glass.

The blast destroyed a house at the entrance to the government-owned factory and extensively damaged a row of homes for the elderly nearby.

Very Acute Struggle

CHINA PURGES ELITE 'HORDE'

TOKYO (UPI) — China acknowledged today that a widespread purge was under way against a "horde" of scholars and cultural elite who oppose the no-compromise doctrine of world revolution. But it warned the West against "wishful thinking" that Peking would soften its line.

An editorial in the Peking People's Daily said the communist regime had been faced since 1949 with a continuing and "very acute" struggle against those who would modify the policy of total equality and worldwide revolutionary activities set down by party chairman Mao Tse-tung.

But the editorial said hundreds of millions of Chinese workers and peasants are now sweeping away the "horde of monsters" that have entrenched themselves in ideological and cultural positions.

SPECIALISTS

Among those branded as such were errant "specialists, scholars, authorities and general masters," the editorial said, without explaining the classifications.

The article, broadcast by the New China news agency, appeared directed at westerners who have watched with hope the published statements of some scholars and party officials suggesting a less militant policy both at home and abroad.

COUNTER TO HISTORY

"Dear sirs, your wishful thinking invariably runs counter to the march of history," the editorial said.

"The triumphant progress of this great and unparalleled cultural revolution of the proletariat is already sounding the death knell not only of the remnant capitalist forces on Chinese soil, but of imperialism, modern (Soviet) revisionism and all reaction. Your days are numbered."

The editorial told the west that this "stormy cultural revolution" was a development to be expected and was thoroughly under state control.

Two Chances Today

Green Light Again For Gemini

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — Hard-luck astronauts Tom Stafford and Eugene Cernan were given the "go" signal late Thursday for the third attempt to fly their Gemini 9 spacecraft at 6:39 a.m. PDT today.

Stafford and Cernan have two chances this time, 96 minutes apart, to get off the ground at last for their rendezvous with a target that was launched successfully on Wednesday and a round-the-world spacewalk by Cernan on Saturday.

The mysterious computer system failure which forced Stafford and Cernan to sit helplessly in their capsule Wednesday while a "space rainbow" slammed shut had been traced to transistor trouble probably due to the overheating of two tiny packages of electronic instruments.

Mission director William C. Schneider said "over 100 tests have been run so far and they've all been successful. So we're fairly certain we've cleaned up that problem."

"The weather looks good and the crew is in fine shape, ready to go."

Surveyor Sends New Pictures

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—Surveyor I began sending new pictures from the moon Thursday night as the earth's rotation again brought it within range of a receiving station at Goldstone, Calif.

The second series of pictures began at 8:51 p.m. PDT. The quality was similar to the pictures radioed early Thursday. (See Page 9)

The 620-pound Surveyor made a soft landing in the Sea of Storms Thursday and radioed 144 pictures showing it had touched down undamaged.

All the first pictures of the new series were close-up studies of the spacecraft. They showed no damage either from the landing impact or from other possible sources such as micrometeorites.

After the first 144 pictures were received, scientists made these projections:

● Surveyor I tends to confirm the photographic findings of U.S. Ranger craft and the Soviet Luna IX that the moon surface is smooth and flat enough to permit manned spacecraft to touch down safely — yet firm enough to sustain their weight.

● The feat put the Surveyor program ahead by one year.

● The landing system of the forthcoming manned Apollo vehicle appear to be correctly designed.

IN GOOD SHAPE

Experts here and abroad hailed the Surveyor experiment as a great informational achievement as well as a scientific masterpiece. Examination of the first 144 pictures showed the 620-pound craft in good shape on a broad, relatively smooth plain after its 63-hour, 250,000-mile journey from the earth.

The television camera was shut down at 4:20 a.m. PDT after the first 144 pictures because the earth's rotation

Mediator, Air Canada

Airline Staff Agrees to Talk

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Air Line Employees' Association announced Thursday night it has accepted an invitation by the federal labor minister to meet with Air Canada and a government mediator in Toronto today.

The announcement came after the independent union said Thursday it will conduct a strike vote and an Air Canada spokesman said it will continue to operate despite the strike threat by its ground office personnel.

OBLIGATION

"We have an obligation to the public to keep providing service," the spokesman said. "A strike would not affect safety of the airline. It would not involve flying personnel or ground maintenance men. We would fill the office posts with supervisory personnel."

"There might be a slowdown in service but we should continue flying."

VOTE NEXT WEEK

He was commenting on an announcement by the union that it will conduct a strike vote next week among its 1,500 Air Canada members.

Robert Dye, president of the independent union, said negotiations were broken off Thursday after failure to make progress on the issues in dispute.

AGENTS, WORKERS

The union represents passenger agents and other ground workers.

The union seeks two increases of eight per cent each within a two-year contract to bring Canadian salaries into line with those paid on American Airlines.

Pilot Killed Near Airport

SEPT-ILES, Que. (CP)—Morris Hayes, 35, of Labrador City, Nfld., was killed Thursday when his single-engine Cessna aircraft crashed near the airport in this community, 325 miles northeast of Quebec City.

Co-ed Trims Messy Stanley Park

VANCOUVER (CP) — Blue-eyed University of B.C. co-ed Dulcie Brimacombe, 19, ditched a ride from her suburban home into Vancouver city with her lawn mower Thursday.

Attired in blue jeans and blouse, Dulcie started cutting the grass in Stanley Park. "And I'll do it all week," she said, "because this place is a mess, and it has to be cared for before it gets worse."

The grass has not been cut since the olive outside workers went on strike 27 days ago.

Bitter Defeat for Bosch

Ex-Trujillo Friend Dominican Victor

SANTO DOMINGO (AP) — Joaquin Balaguer, a reform-minded Conservative and favorite of the late dictator Rafael Trujillo, won the Dominican presidency Thursday night. The result came as a bitter election defeat for the backers of Juan Bosch.

Crying "fraud," pro-Bosch demonstrators gathered in the streets but were dispersed by police and troops swinging rifle butts and clubs and using tear gas.

The election was praised as honest by the 21 Western Hemisphere observers gathered here to witness the voting.

MIDDLE ROAD

Nearly complete returns gave Balaguer, of the Reformist party, 641,332 votes against 408,054 for Bosch, of the Revolutionary party.

Balaguer ran under the banner of the Reformist party, a middle-of-the-road group promising social change.

TROUBLE IN CITY

Considering the trend—for Balaguer in the rural area and for Bosch in the urban districts—the margin appeared too formidable for Bosch to overcome in what remained to be tabulated.

Bosch was encountering trouble even in his main stronghold, this capital city, where, although he was leading, he was running behind his smashing 1962 rate.

LOSING IN CAPITAL

Bosch was running here at only 51 per cent of the vote. Experts figured he needed to win 70 per cent—as he did in 1962—to give Balaguer a fight.

U.S. Troops Pulling Out By July 1?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States may withdraw the 5,700 peacekeeping troops it still has in the Dominican Republic by July 1 — providing all goes well in the aftermath of the presidential elections.

This would end a controversial chapter in U.S. diplomacy which began more than a year ago when President Johnson ordered American troops to intervene in the Dominican civil strife.

Quebec Picketing Restricted

Court Bans Dock Threats

MONTREAL (CP) — The National Harbors Board Thursday obtained an interim injunction prohibiting striking longshoremen from threatening its employees and limiting the number of pickets at entrances to the harbor.

Lawyers for the International Longshoremen's Association (ILA), which represents the strikers, were summoned to appear in Superior Court before Mr. Justice P. I. Cole to hear details.

The ILA earlier told Prime Minister Pearson in a telegram that it cannot settle its dispute with the Shipping Federation of Canada and asked that any new talks be with the stevedoring companies in the three strike-bound ports.

The interim injunction, issued by Judge Cole, prohibits picketing by longshoremen on streets leading to the harbor and to the property of individual shipping companies.

Lawyers of the NHB cited reports of violence in the port area Tuesday in making their request for the injunction.

They said Joel Oliveira, 23, a Brazilian navy cadet, was in hospital with a fractured skull as a result of the violence. Another cadet was assaulted.

To Break Communication Barrier

Every Child Needs Other 'Parents'

HAMILTON (CP) — Two American psychologists agreed in interviews Thursday there is hardly any real communication between North American teen-agers and their parents.

Rev. Roy W. Fairchild of San Francisco said "every child should have the parents of another family in whom to confide, because most children will not bare themselves to their natural parents."

"This is largely because activity in society causes parents not to have the time to listen to their children."

Mrs. Cynthia Wedel, National Council of Churches in the U.S., said teen-agers "hate

phoniness and they think adults are phony."

Dr. Fairchild and Mrs. Wedel are participants in the second North American Conference on Church and Family that ends today. Co-sponsored by the Canadian Council of Churches and the National Council of Churches, the five-day conference is attended by more than 500 delegates.

Mrs. Wedel said there is "a lot of disillusionment" among young people who have served in the U.S. Peace Corps. They return from overseas assignments and "nobody wants to hear of their achievements."

Dr. Fairchild said middle-class parents really want their children to confide in them, "yet keeping a secret is a vital part of a child's development. Parents must realize this."

The first meaningful breakthrough in child-parent communication comes when a child voluntarily seeks to share a secret with his parents.

He criticized the present educational system in Western culture for preparing children to participate in industrial and commercial productivity. This results in a quest for success getting priority over a quest for personal significance.

Ambition was important, but one's goal must fit his capacity and ability. Not every one would become a senior executive, although the tendency was to try to become one.

Congo Plotters Die

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP)—Former Congo premier Evariste Kimba and three ex-cabinet ministers walked unflinchingly to the gallows in Leopoldville's main square Thursday and were hanged on a charge of plotting to kill President Joseph Mobutu.

The government had declared a holiday for the executions and more than 100,000 persons jammed the square and watched silently.

Shortly before the last man, Alexandre Mahamba, fell through the trap, women and children broke through police lines and rushed toward seated military dignitaries. Police brought the crowd under control.

Beside Kimba and Mahamba, those hanged were Jerome An-any and Emmanuel Bamba. With the exception of Kimba, all were former ministers in the cabinet of Premier Cyrille Adoula. Adoula became premier Aug. 2, 1961, but, faced with economic problems and tribal warfare, resigned June 6, 1964. He now is ambassador to Belgium.

The men were arrested Monday and condemned Tuesday by a military court.

After the executions, Bamba's sister, Naïona, was rushed to hospital after she was found hanging by the neck from a tree outside her late brother's home. Relatives cut her down and she was said to be recovering.

In its charges against the four, the government asserted that Bamba was the chief plotter and that Anany was to become premier if the conspirators succeeded in killing Mobutu.

Bamba was a close friend of ex-president Joseph Kasavubu, who was ousted along with Kimba when Mobutu, the army commander, seized power last November. Mobutu said when he acted because of the political turmoil that ensued after Kasavubu fired Moïse Tshombe as premier Oct. 13.

Despite the coup, relations between Kasavubu and Mobutu remained cordial. There has been no indication that Kasavubu was implicated in the alleged plot.

Three Little Maids Are Free

Diplomacy Sidelines Law for Soviet Shoplifters

VANCOUVER (CP) — Three little maids from the Soviet ship Skripiev went shoplifting in Vancouver, got caught, and got the red carpet treatment.

The merchant decided not to prosecute. What's more, city police who investigated the case drove the three women back to their ship — then apparently lost their report on the incident.

The tale of department store diplomacy started 10 days ago, and came to light only Wednesday.

The Russian women were crew members aboard the largest of three Soviet scientific fishing trawlers that put into Vancouver for supplies and repairs May 18.

and said he'd look after the matter. But he said he didn't think any Western-style publicity would help the cause of international goodwill.

The store agreed, a store spokesman said Wednesday, and dropped charges. The ship sailed the next day.

Mass Methods Major Problem

VANCOUVER (CP) — The size of the student body and the need to give individual attention to students are the greatest problems facing Canadian universities today, says the retiring chancellor of the University of British Columbia.

Mrs. Frank Ross told 510 students receiving degrees at Thursday's second session of the three-day spring convocation that teaching "the most sensitive of human connections" cannot be accomplished successfully by mass methods.

"Somehow we must find systems, methods and techniques to ensure that the mature mind meets the maturing mind — personally, directly and effectively."

Three honorary degrees were given Thursday.

Sir John Carew Eccles, professor of neurophysiology at the Australian National University in Canberra and a Nobel prize winner in medicine, was awarded an honorary doctor of science degree.

External Affairs Minister Martin, who was cited for maintaining his department above politics and for his work in the Cyprus conflict, was made an honorary doctor of laws.

And Dr. G. Neil Perry, deputy minister of education in British Columbia, was given an honorary doctor of laws degree. He is a former vice-president of UBC.

Shotgun Blast Ends 'Son-in-Law' Prospect

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — "I just don't want him for a son-in-law," said 78-year-old Sam Braden.

Braden was explaining to police Wednesday why he greeted 16-year-old Willie B. Woodruff with a shotgun blast when young Woodruff stepped into the front yard on his way to claiming Braden's 18-year-old daughter, Mamie Louise, as a bride.

The young couple had planned to get married after attending school Wednesday. Police found a marriage licence and a $5 bill in the dead youth's pocket.

Braden was charged with murder.

Readily admitting the slaying, the old man said: "I guess maybe I should have shot him a little lower, and maybe just broken a few bones."

Medicare Details Sought Before Medical Parley

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Medical Association, on the eve of an annual convention at which medical care insurance is sure to be a prime topic, makes a new effort next week to get more information on federal plans in this field.

Officers of the CMA will meet Prime Minister Pearson briefly Wednesday and their talks will be followed by the first extended discussion of federal medical care insurance proposals with Health Minister MacEachen.

BEFORE MEETING

In a telegram to Prime Minister Pearson, the CMA requested the meeting be held before the association's annual meeting June 13-17 in Edmonton in the light of indications that Ottawa's legislation soon will be placed before Parliament.

"The CMA executive instructed its representatives to remind the federal government that the medicare crisis in Saskatchewan — which produced withdrawal of doctors' services — resulted from passage of legislation which precluded private practice outside the provincial plan.

"Nothing would be more disturbing to the doctors of this nation than to learn of legislation after it is presented to the House of Commons," the CMA telegram said.

While the CMA has met three times this year with Mr. MacEachen, the discussions touched on medical care insurance only at one meeting.

The CMA has said it objects to two of the four conditions which will be attached to federal payments to the provinces. Substantial disagreement was expressed to the conditions that benefits be universally available and that the plans be publicly administered.

The CMA has interpreted universality as involving compulsion and the administrative formula as meaning government administered.

However, in recent speeches, Mr. MacEachen has taken the stand that the federal conditions to not exclude non-government administration or compel doctor and patient participation.

But Ottawa insists that to qualify for federal payments the plans start with 90 per cent of the population of a province rising to 95 per cent within three years.

Congo Martyrs

THE SPECTACLE of savagery in Leopoldville where four political enemies of President Joseph Mobutu were hanged Thursday before a silent, and probably frightened crowd of 80,000 men, women and children, will disgust all those who believe in justice as much as it will distress the gentler humanitarian.

Their trial was a travesty. No evidence was presented, and the defendants had no counsel. It would not have done them any good if they had. For they were not even allowed a hearing, although each was sardonically invited to speak in his own behalf. The bloodthirsty crowd of 10,000 howled them down at their outdoors, so-called trial.

No doubt the ruling party had some sort of evidence of a treasonable plot against Mobutu but, if it had, it was careful to disclose no part of it. This in itself is enough to create doubt of the validity of the charge in the fair-minded.

The case for the prosecution must be flimsy indeed if the authorities have not the courage to divulge it or allow even a word of defence.

These four unfortunate Africans were condemned before they were arrested.

In the manner of their deaths, however, they may very well have left the seed of rebellion which could undo Mobutu. The silence of the packed square may indicate a change of feeling in the public mind. Even more significant was the turning away of a large proportion of the spectators after the first of the condemned had dropped on the scaffold.

All four died courageously.

Among the Bakongo they will be martyrs. One of them, former senator Emmanuel Baba, was an important religious leader of the people who revolted against the Belgian administration in 1959.

President Mobutu, who refused clemency, might do well to leave the gallows where it stands in Grand Square. It will undoubtedly be required again.

Such is the state of affairs in the politically topsy-turvy Congo that Mobutu himself could one day be a candidate for the traitor's noose.

Under the frock coat and the other trappings of leaders of the new free states every now and again one can glimpse the leopard skin.

Peace in Space

THE UNITED STATES' amazingly accurate and successful soft-landing on the moon of its Surveyor spacecraft is seen as heralding much more human traffic in months and years to come, including human exploration before the end of the decade. Thus it serves to emphasize the desirability of reaching international agreement as soon as possible on the peaceful use, for the benefit of all mankind, of the moon and other bodies in space.

Almost coincidentally, the probability of such an agreement being achieved has been greatly enhanced by a Soviet request that the drafting of a treaty be placed on the agenda of the session of the United Nations General Assembly opening on September 20, because the general terms of the pact suggested by Russia could hardly be more in line with those called for by President Johnson early in May unless the two nations had collaborated to put forward a joint proposal.

On four points the Soviet and American positions are practically identical. The moon and other celestial bodies should be free for exploration and use by all countries without any discrimination, both space powers maintain. No country should be permitted to advance a claim of territorial sovereignty. All military bases and weapons of mass destruction should be banned. There should be co-operation and mutual assistance among the countries involved in space explorations. President Johnson listed one other minor principle omitted by Soviet Foreign Minister Gromyko: that studies should be made to avoid harmful contamination.

With such accord on the main features of a peace-in-space treaty, it should not be difficult to produce a document to which all UN members could willingly subscribe.

If there is a disquieting thought about this prospect, it is that the most populous country on earth, perhaps the fastest catching up in scientific potency, the most belligerent of the major powers, is not yet one of the United Nations.

One Miss, One Hit

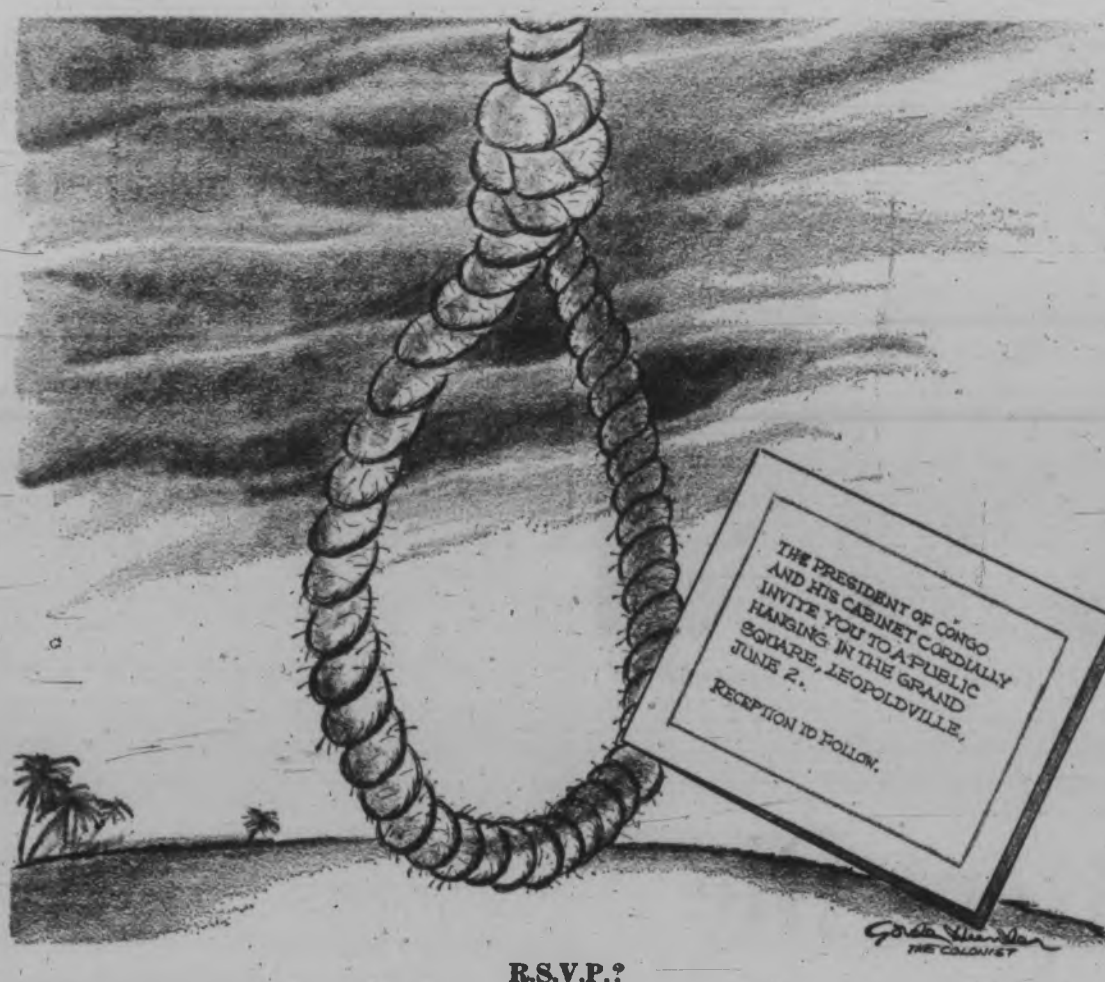

IT IS OFTEN difficult to make out exactly what Municipal Affairs Minister Campbell means in his pronouncements on the workings of local government. This is the case once more in his declaration that with some of the outdated municipal machinery now operating in the province, municipalities would have a hard time making use of additional revenue from the provincial treasury; that "if you don't have a flexible machine to carry assistance into action and handle possible programs in an efficient manner, you are getting nowhere."

One can scarcely credit that, in any circumstances, further financial help from the province would not enable the municipalities to carry out more development or ease the tax load on their ratepayers or both. And therefore the minister's remarks are not a convincing denial of Mayor Toone's suggestion that a more equitable sharing of provincial-municipal financial resources would make life easier for the municipalities.

However, it sounds as if Mr. Campbell was trying to kill two birds with one stone. And if he missed one he hit the other. Certainly it can be seen that new times are demanding new ways in municipal governance; that, for an example cited by the minister, overlapping services are unduly costly to the taxpayer; that increasingly there is a need for regional administration of the kind already instituted, to Mr. Campbell's credit, in several parts of the province.

The minister is to be commended, moreover, for for the way he has set about modernizing more of the municipal machinery: through study with the Union of B.C. Municipalities and with the advice of municipal staffs, and later with public hearings. All the people best informed and most concerned will thus have the opportunity to help arrive at a consensus on needed reforms before they are given legislative effect.

It might be helpful in the process, though, if Mr. Campbell were to be more specific and less inclined to ambiguity in his public utterances.

R.S.V.P.?

Thinking Aloud

"... of shoes, and ships, and sealing wax..."
By TOM TAYLOR

A British government has rejected an idea voiced by Lord Montgomery in the august chamber that is now graced by his presence.

This isn't the first time that the famous Monty has made some startling pronouncement. Since he doffed uniform a few years back he's never been backward in putting his own into matters previously foreign to him.

Sometimes so much so it seemed he might dim his stature as a field marshal. Not that I think this should.

After all generals per se have frequently been the victims of lay criticism. They are regarded as fair game, often by those who don't give them a reasonable shake. And they aren't at all the morose some people think, you know.

If ours had been, Hitler might be top dog on Parliament Hill and not Mr. Pearson.

Just the other night for instance I heard a guest on a CBC television panel who is the author of a book on August, 1914—which I haven't read—which apparently doesn't rate general's very highly. So I gathered from the questions put to her.

That's all right too, it's a free country. But it can be said that historians enjoy an advantage over generals they downgrade. They have the postwar hindsight of knowledge hidden from generals—and most important of all—the historians didn't have to make the crucial battlefield decisions.

But Montgomery rather takes one's breath away this time, even on a subject related to his meter.

He was advocating that Britain's armed forces should be limited to bachelors alone. And this from one who himself wasn't a bachelor, and in whose own military writings you won't find any suggestion that the married men of his commands ever let him down.

But his idea is that unmarried troops would save the country money.

So they would. In our own Commons this week it was conceded that it costs more to maintain Canadian forces in Europe than at home. The reason being the wives and families who accompany the men abroad.

At first thought the Montgomery idea should seem to suit Mr. Hellyer to a T, since his proclaimed goal has been economy in the defence structure.

But even Mr. Hellyer would shy away from the Montgomery thesis, and one is surprised the field marshal hasn't also realized the results to follow a bachelor army.

There wouldn't then be any armed forces, or at most forces so shrunken as to put our defence minister in a bigger recruitment dilemma than currently embroils him.

No wonder Whitehall turned Monty down.

And what about all those girls sailors are alleged, and not only alleged, to love. And the soldiers and airmen too who catch the feminine eye? Should they be compelled to single-blessedness when their fancy so obviously runs in the opposite direction?

Of course not. And happily for them and their martial men they aren't at all like to be.

I admire Montgomery's military leadership a lot; but I think, sadly, he must now be slipping.

A U.S. View of Canadians

Canada: Proud, Polite and Frank

By JOHN S. KNIGHT

MONTREAL — They came, they saw, they were conquered.

The skeptics among us — all members of the American Society of Newspaper Editors — who anticipated a toneless, unimaginative meeting in Canada's largest city have been captured by the charm, hospitality and friendship of our northern neighbors despite the dreary weather.

In an era when courtesy and politeness have all but disappeared in putting his own into matters previously foreign to him. Sometimes so much so it seemed he might dim his stature as a field marshal. Not that I think this should.

After all generals per se have frequently been the victims of lay criticism. They are regarded as fair game, often by those who don't give them a reasonable shake. And they aren't at all the morose some people think, you know.

If ours had been, Hitler might be top dog on Parliament Hill and not Mr. Pearson.

Just the other night for instance I heard a guest on a CBC television panel who is the author of a book on August, 1914—which I haven't read—which apparently doesn't rate general's very highly. So I gathered from the questions put to her.

That's all right too, it's a free country. But it can be said that historians enjoy an advantage over generals they downgrade. They have the postwar hindsight of knowledge hidden from generals—and most important of all—the historians didn't have to make the crucial battlefield decisions.

But Montgomery rather takes one's breath away this time, even on a subject related to his meter.

He was advocating that Britain's armed forces should be limited to bachelors alone. And this from one who himself wasn't a bachelor, and in whose own military writings you won't find any suggestion that the married men of his commands ever let him down.

But his idea is that unmarried troops would save the country money.

So they would. In our own Commons this week it was conceded that it costs more to maintain Canadian forces in Europe than at home. The reason being the wives and families who accompany the men abroad.

At first thought the Montgomery idea should seem to suit Mr. Hellyer to a T, since his proclaimed goal has been economy in the defence structure.

But even Mr. Hellyer would shy away from the Montgomery thesis, and one is surprised the field marshal hasn't also realized the results to follow a bachelor army.

There wouldn't then be any armed forces, or at most forces so shrunken as to put our defence minister in a bigger recruitment dilemma than currently embroils him.

No wonder Whitehall turned Monty down.

And what about all those girls sailors are alleged, and not only alleged, to love. And the soldiers and airmen too who catch the feminine eye? Should they be compelled to single-blessedness when their fancy so obviously runs in the opposite direction?

Of course not. And happily for them and their martial men they aren't at all like to be.

O taste and see that the Lord is good: blessed is the man that trusteth in Him.—Psalm, 34:8.

(This article by the president and editor of the Detroit Free Press was written following the annual meeting, in Montreal, of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, the first convention of the society to be held outside the United States.)

Canada is indeed a complex country and certainly not subject to instant interpretation by a visiting journalist. American understanding of Canadian issues is largely foreclosed since no United States newspapers attempt more than minimal coverage of their northern neighbor's social, political and economic problems.

A year or so ago, our press talked of the tension between English and French Canada and the distinct possibility of separation. There was also the nagging fear that Canada's economy would ultimately be dominated by the United States.

Today, less is heard of the danger of confrontation or a breakup of Confederation. True, these questions are being hotly debated in Quebec's election campaign with Premier Jean Lesage talking like a Southern states-righter while assailing the "merchants of the illusion." Lesage, however, is calling for a "strong mandate" since, as he says, no one can approach him for having lacked firmness in fighting Quebec's cause both at home and abroad.

So all but the extremists tend to agree that expediency, rather than affection, requires the quieting of relations between Quebec and the rest of the country lest, as the Montreal Star expresses it, "any major split between them might throw them completely under American political and economic sovereignty, and thus rob them of such individuality as they now possess."

In the sense that we acknowledge and Americanize in other countries, there is little of this feeling in Canada. As the Star says, "Canadians simply want to keep an identity that goes far back into history. No one suggests at the moment a calculated American plot exists to take over Canada. U.S. businessmen are here individually, not collectively, and they are here in reasonable fashion to make a profit."

Canada, which boasts of the second highest living standard in the world, is not about to "become wholly American within a generation" as some economists have mentioned. The Canadians are much too individualistic to accept either our economic domination or our leadership in foreign affairs.

Most informed Canadians have little enthusiasm for United States intervention in Viet Nam. They consider it to be an unrealistic crusade against a "so-called Communist menace" despite the clear evidence that old ideology is indeed a diminishing influence.

Nor can they understand our refusal to acknowledge the existence of Red China since China trades with most of the great Western powers. Canadians believe that trade and exchanges lessen tensions with the Communist world and are on the whole, both inevitable and desirable.

The Montreal Star says there is no longer a Communist monolith to threaten us. This influential newspaper opposes our role in Viet Nam by saying "Americans are in a part of the world in which they do not belong and from which we believe they should get out as quickly as possible."

Yet, Defence Secretary McNamara, while denying that the United States is in "global gendarme" and who concedes that "we have no mandate from on high to police the world," is advocating that our young men give two years of service to the military services, the Peace Corps, or some other volunteer developmental work at home.

The defence secretary told his audience of editors in Montreal that such a move "would underscore what our whole policy is in Viet Nam — and indeed anywhere in the world where we consider an injustice, or lack of decent opportunity still exists."

The Canadians have but little patience with such doctrine though they have themselves assisted in every peace-keeping operation of the United Nations — in Korea, Kashmir, the Suez, the Congo and Cyprus.

But they see Viet Nam in a totally different light. To them the American adventure is ill-advised, illogical and, in all probability, futile. Canadians know that the world has undergone sweeping changes which demand a reshaping of policies based on "containment" of communism. They believe that the concept for the containment of Red China "without isolation" is a throwback to the days of John Foster Dulles.

Unanswered Question

By RICHARD JACKSON, Colonist Ottawa Bureau

IT'S a fascinating thought... what, if anything, did Quebec Conservative MP Heward Grafftey of Brome-Missisquoi, have to do with those jitters on Wall Street and the resulting shakes on the Toronto and Montreal Stock Exchanges?

Silly question, you say? Well, just that very question has been asked in the Commons and even Mr. Grafftey, Parliament's automotive safety crusader, concedes he can't be certain beyond any shadow of doubt that the answer is "nothing."

The question, as asked by H. W. Hurd, New Democratic MP from Kootenay West, of Industries Minister C. M. "Bud" Drury:

"In view of the fluctuations of the New York Stock Exchange owing to several announcements by General Motors with respect to the operations of their various plants, does the industry minister consider this a form of retaliation for the successful campaign carried on for safer cars by the honorable member for Brome-Missisquoi?"

The question wasn't answered. Mr. Speaker Lamoureux ruling it out of order. Pity.

As Mr. Hurd is a maverick socialist but still an NDP, his reference to "retaliation" by GM can be ignored as anti-business nonsense.

But there does remain the more serious implication that perhaps, remotely, Mr. Grafftey, with his safety campaign, may have been an indirect influence in upsetting Wall Street's nerves.

For as any broker will tell you, if you want to know what's happening and why on the Big Board in New York, you ask in the board rooms in Detroit.

When things slow along the production lines in the motor capital, when overtime sinks into short-time, when car quotas shrink, when sales slide... the industrial index slips in the financial capital those 687 miles away, as it did that second week of May by 28 points.

Unnecessarily, perhaps, as the button-down crowd around the tickers will tell you.

But it is a fact of industrial life that while the economic brain of North America an industrial life is in Lower Manhattan, the heart is in Detroit where the car pumps the life-blood of the economy.

Last year the U.S. motor industry turned out 9,313,912 cars and sold them.

Put it another way: the industry used 18 million tons of steel or 22 per cent of U.S. production, 13 per cent of aluminum, 14 per cent of nickel and 60 per cent of rubber.

Or still another way: Detroit is the biggest buyer and seller in the U.S. market. And as goes the U.S. economy, so goes the Canadian.

Nearly $36,000,000,000 — just about four times the total Canadian budget — was spent across the line last year on new cars.

So if something happens on those Detroit production lines to disturb prosperity's quickening pace, who's to wonder that Wall Street gets a bit nervous?

And reacting, Toronto's Bay Street, Montreal's St. James and Vancouver's Hastings, jitter.

Why, almost without visible warning, were the parking lots of the motor plants jammed, the dealers' showrooms full with something like a million cars stuck in the supply pipeline between the assembly lines and the industry's customers who should have been busy — at least busier than they have been — with their automotive spring shopping?

Was Ralph Nader one of the reasons, if only a small one? Ralph Nader, a 33-year-old Washington lawyer, wrote a book attacking auto safety standards. It became, strangely, an industrial best seller, and Nader, even more strangely, an expert or authority in the field with a kind of stature that got him called before congressional committees.

It is good to have such friends in today's world, friends who do not hesitate to let you know where they stand and why. Americans may not comprehend the complexities of Canada's internal affairs since they have had so little exposure to them. But they do grasp and fully understand the important fact that when our two nations can have a common boundary and live in accord for so many years, wars will always be found to adjust such differences as may occasionally arise between us.

Next year Montreal will open Expo 67, an international exposition to mark the 100th birthday of Canadian independence. The Expo director assures us that "we will move heaven and earth to insure that no visitor, participating nation or private exhibitor will be gouged. Everyone will get good value for their money."

Since Canadians can be believed and because Americans will like to see northern neighbors, a visit to Expo 67 is highly recommended when planning next year's summer vacation.

Did he scare off some new car buyers, and while he is in-charge enough, along with Viet Nam and inflation to un-nerve the giant motor industry into cutting back?

Henry Ford II, head of the Ford Motor Company, has said just that — that the safety thing has hurt sales. And so, of necessity, cut production.

What part, if any, did Heward Grafftey play not just with his car safety nagging in Canada but with those appearances, as expert or authority, he made before investigative bodies in New York?

The question has been asked in Parliament.

It would be interesting to have Mr. Drury's reply.

Heward Grafftey "hopes" he wasn't a factor, but is sincerely concerned enough to wonder and worry — for he can't be sure.

Communists' Trend

Israel Acceptable

By LAJOS LEDERER from London

THE conference of Israeli envoys from seven East European capitals, including Moscow, held in Warsaw last month, marks a turning point in Israel's relations with the Communist regimes of East Europe.

That the Poles should agree to a consultative meeting of this kind called by the Israeli foreign minister, Mr. Abu Eban, being held in Warsaw, is in itself an extraordinary gesture by a Communist government — especially as it coincided with the visit of the Soviet prime minister, Mr. Kosygin, to the United Arab Republic.

The purpose of the conference is believed to be to consider an apparent change of policy by the East European Communist governments towards Israel, and the fate of the remaining Jewish population in those countries.

This was the first conference of its kind in an East European capital, and also the first visit of an Israeli foreign minister to Poland or for that matter to any Communist country. Although Mr. Eban's visit was not official, the Polish foreign minister, Mr. Adam Rapacki, found it convenient to have two long discussions with him.

There have been other signs recently that Communist countries, including the Soviet Union, are taking a more positive attitude towards Israel. In many of them, notably Romania and Hungary, the ban on emigration to Israel has recently been partially lifted so that families can be reunited.

Negotiations for the resumption of trade between the Soviet Union and Israel are reported to have begun, and the Israeli Philharmonic Orchestra has been invited to Russia to give concerts in the big cities next autumn.

Swedes Put Their Might Underground

By SCOTT AIKEN
From Stockholm

In the Stockholm archipelago, the finishing touches are being put on a $60,000,000 naval base that has been blasted out underground in the heart of a granite island.

At the Saab auto and airplane manufacturing company, the construction of the prototypes of a new supersonic, all-Swedish jet fighter is underway. The Viggen is to be in production in 1971 at a cost of more than $1,500,000 a plane.

These are but two of the many projects Sweden is pushing ahead with in order to maintain a military punch strong enough (hopefully) to make even one of the world's nuclear superpowers think twice about the cost of conquering this neutral country.

Sweden spends more proportionately on its defence (4.5 per cent annually of its gross national product) than most of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization nations.

The new underground naval base south of Stockholm is a striking example of the determination and ingenuity this nation of less than 8,000,000 people shows in seeking to maintain its 150-year-old neutrality.

Other navies have built bases in coastal cliffs the Soviets have submarine pens in the rock of the Baltic nations' coastal, but still Sweden's Musk Island base is unusual.

In 1968, when it is completely ready, the navy will move its Baltic headquarters there from the exposed Stockholm harbor where they have been since the early 16th century.

The new base is protected both by its natural granite armor and by gigantic steel doors.

It can withstand any bombardment except a bull's-eye hit by a nuclear weapon.

Within the rock are drydocks that will hold destroyers, the principal large surface unit of the navy. The docks are the size of cathedrals.

There are command centres, a hospital, dining facilities and many others that are long defence air raid shelters deep in secret. About 1,000 men will work permanently at the base.

Musk Island is the biggest of the granite-encased naval bases Sweden has built, but there are a number of other, smaller-scale ones along the coast.

This cathedral-like destroyer drydock is part of huge defence facilities built underground at Musk Island, south of Stockholm.

It is not only, however, the navy that makes use of Sweden's bedrock. Plane hangars are set in mountainsides. Whole factories have been placed in caverns blasted out of the granite. In the centre of Stockholm there are four civil and many others that are long defence air raid shelters deep in secret. They are used as parking garages at present.

The Swedish government calls these facilities part of Sweden's "total defence" — military, economic and civil.

While most Swedes wholeheartedly support the defence effort, an increasingly argumentative minority asserts that the expenditure (about $1,000,000,000 this year — nearly 20 per cent of the government budget) is wasted in the face of the might of the superpowers.

This minority advocates unilateral dismantling of Sweden's armed forces and creation of a "people's defence" — guerrilla units — to harass an invader. The country's small Communist Party advocates this course, but more worrisome to Swedish leaders is the recent adherence to this line of some radical left-wing members of the Social Democratic Party, which has governed this country most of the time since the 1930s.

The debate these Social Democrats have set in motion with the help of the party newspaper in Stockholm seems to be picking up steam. The eventual result may be at least a major national review of Swedish defence.

Threat to Beef Industry

Argentina Hit By U.K. Strike

By CHARLES KEELY, from Buenos Aires

Britain's shipping strike casts a foreboding shadow far across the Atlantic.

Fears are growing here that the strike may seriously threaten Argentina's cattle industry which provides at least half of the country's foreign exchange.

With more than $200,000,000 due in foreign debts this year, Argentina needs very peso it can earn through beef exports.

—And Britain is Argentina's best customer.

Seven ships, five of them British, are now en route to England loaded with more than $9,000,000 of frozen beef from Argentina ports.

If the strike, as reported possible here, lasts through June, cattlemen and exporters fear their beef will be backed up at a time when cattle are arriving in Buenos Aires stockyards in the greatest quantities in recent months. More than 24,000 head came into local stockyards one day alone last week.

Argentina normally exports about $350,000,000 a year in beef products, one-third of this to Britain.

At the same time, Argentine beef exports to the European Common Market (ECM) countries are equally endangered. Attracted by higher prices while hoof and mouth disease ravaged European herds, Argentina diverted considerable quantities of beef to the ECM.

Now European herds are back again and the ECM has slapped prohibitive tariffs on beef imports. Argentina, for example, has sold Italy only 700 tons this year compared to 2,500 tons last year.

There is growing concern that Britain, too, could end up behind the imposing tariff walls if its membership is successfully negotiated in the ECM.

British experts say their country will need another 200,000 tons of meat annually by 1967, and will look to New Zealand, Australia, and the River Plate countries—Argentina, Uruguay, and Paraguay—to get it.

Recently President Arturo Illia reported that the nation's cattle population had risen from 42,000,000 to 47,000,000 since 1962, more than two head of cattle for each of Argentina's 22,000,000 people.

But it's not enough. Experts believe this increase is not great enough to meet available foreign and domestic demands. Because of cattlemen's fears of the national economic situation, perennial inflation growth has lagged far behind the world average over the last two decades—about 5 per cent compared to 45 per cent.

Britain's shipping strike has compounded this delicate dilemma and has brought serious concern in government circles regarding Argentina's critical balance of payments problems this year.

Major Air Attack Wrecks Red Convoy

SAIGON (UPI) — U.S. Air Force planes knocked out a 27-truck Communist convoy heading for the Ho Chi Minh trail during the third straight day of massive attacks against North Vietnamese transport lines. American military spokesmen said Thursday.

The spectacular raid on the convoy, which was moving toward the Barthelmy Pass, came during one of 68 missions flown by air force and navy pilots on Wednesday. They showed 87 Americans were killed in action, 605 wounded and two missing for the week ending May 28.

While again high, the toll was considerably under the previous week's figure of 146 killed and 820 wounded, highest of the war. The South Vietnamese lost 240 men killed and 55 missing last week. Figures for wounded were not given but sources said the total was 467.

The Communists lost 1,173 killed last week.

Viet Nam Request

Vote Watch Urged on UN

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — South Viet Nam asked the United Nations Thursday to send observers for the election Sept. 11 of an assembly described as the first step toward restoration of civilian rule in that war-torn country.

Negro Group Urges Withdrawal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A militant Negro delegate to the U.S. White House conference on civil rights called Thursday for immediate U.S. withdrawal from Viet Nam, triggering a sharp debate with other Negroes over whether this was an "appropriate issue."

Floyd R. McKissick, chairman of the Congress of Racial Equality, said he planned to offer a formal resolution calling for a U.S. pull-out from Viet Nam so that money spent on the war could be freed to help Negroes and other disadvantaged groups.

McKissick and other militants won a point from the moderates Wednesday when the conference agreed to change its rules and permit voting on resolutions in workshop sessions as the conference, now in its final day, winds up.

There appeared no prospect of the conference as a whole either voting on or approving a resolution critical of President Johnson's Vietnamese policies.

Ambassador Nguyen Duy Lien, South Vietnamese UN observer, made the request to UN Secretary-General U Thant, who has been cool to suggestions that the UN supervise or observe elections in South Viet Nam.

U.S. President Johnson endorsed the proposal.

NO REACTION

A UN spokesman reported no immediate reaction from Thant and the secretary-general was expected to leave the request with the Security Council. There it would meet the threat of a Soviet veto.

The Soviet Union and France have insisted that the problems of Viet Nam be dealt with by the Geneva conference on Indochina. The 1954 conference settled the conflict between the French and the forces of Ho Chi Minh, Communist president of North Viet Nam.

150 MEMBERS

In Saigon, the South Vietnamese electoral committee was reported working on plans for the election of an assembly of about 150 members.

That would be roughly one representative for each 100,000 persons. Minority groups such as Cambodians and Chinese are to be included.

Committee officials said Thursday they have reached a number of tentative conclusions which will be submitted to Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's military government next week.

Settlement Offered By Doyle

OTTAWA (CP) — John G. Doyle, former president of Canadian Javelin Ltd., has offered to settle a $2,600,000 personal debt to the company and the offer likely will be submitted to a special meeting of shareholders, the company says in its 1954 annual report.

Mr. Doyle had a debt of $3,550,000 to the company and a New York court ordered him in 1963 to pay it off in four annual installments.

First Since Confederation

Divorce Study Stage Set

OTTAWA (CP) — A joint commission of the population and the Senate set the stage Thursday for a major inquiry into Canada's divorce laws, particularly proposals to widen grounds for divorce.

The first meeting of the committee decided to call lawyers, sociologists and other experts on divorce laws and their effects.

Peligious, women's, labor and other national organizations will be invited to submit briefs. Reid Scott (NDP — Toronto 12 senators will deal specifically Danforth), said the inquiry would demolish once and for all the widely-held myth that their add new grounds for divorce to the existing ones of adultery and perversion.

Most of the bills list desertion, criminal behavior, incurable insanity, drug addiction and alcoholism as new grounds now limited to adultery in most cases.

The date of the first public hearing will be set next week by a steering subcommittee of five MPs and three senators.

Nevada Desert Combed for Handicapped Boy

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Human chains of searchers dipped from the mountains to the high desert near Indian Springs Thursday with hope in their hearts that they will find a handicapped six-year-old boy missing six days.

The exhaustive search for hard-of-hearing Larry Jeffrey lost in an isolated wasteland since Saturday has included hundreds of men, supersonic jets equipped with photographic equipment and blaxihounds.

One bloodhound died from exhaustion Wednesday. Another, named Cold Nose Joe, remained at his post, limping on bandaged paws.

The boy's parents — Lee and Sharon Jeffrey of Henderson, Nev. — and his stepmother, Alice Jeffrey, have maintained an around-the-clock vigil since he wandered from his parents' campsite in Lee Canyon last Saturday.

The lightly-clothed youngster disappeared after he was denied permission to climb to a higher level to see snow on the ground.

Clark County Sheriff Ralph P. said he believed the boy might be found alive.

When searchers failed to locate the boy earlier this week, Gov. Grant Sawyer mobilized members of the Nevada National Guard. It was the first time in southern Nevada history the guard has been called out for a search by order of the governor.

A human chain stretching nearly four miles long tramped through arroyos near Mt. Charleston, almost 12,000 feet above the desert floor and about 45 miles northwest of this gambling city.

Later the long hopeful line was broken up into smaller chains which swept the area near Indian Springs in three or four directions.

Tracks discovered Wednesday and followed by professional trackers led to shale-covered terrain, where they disappeared. Authorities, however, agreed that the footprints appeared to be headed downhill toward Indian Springs.

"The boy may have sighted the lights of Indian Springs," said Sheriff's Lt. William Conger. "His tracks have covered about seven miles. After he left the mountain ridges, he seems to have aimed at the town."

Aerial photos of the terrain taken by two RF4C jets failed to yield any trace of the boy.

Fellowship Awarded Victorian

Sub-Lieut. Michael Potter, 145 Barclay Terrace, has been awarded a National Research Council fellowship for advanced study in physics, it was announced Thursday.

Sub-Lieut. Potter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alan U. Potter, graduated last Friday from Royal Military College in Kingston, Ont., and received his commission in the Royal Canadian Navy.

His name was omitted from the official list of graduates.

A former student at Oak Bay senior high school, he obtained his Bachelor of Science degree at RMC with honors in physics. He will seek his master's degree at the University of British Columbia.

Slowdown Urged In Poisons

VANCOUVER (CP) — Delegations to the Canadian Plant Societies' meeting at the University of British Columbia Wednesday talked about insidious things that threaten trees, animals and farm crops. Forestry research scientist Dr. R. G. McGinn of Victoria, for instance, said that there should be a slowdown in the use of toxic materials to fight tree diseases.

"He said every time a new wonder drug is introduced in human medicine, it later appears to have side effects, and the same might be true in poisons used to fight tree diseases."

"Although toxic materials may seem to produce quick results, control by other methods may be a more certain method of maintaining the productive capacity of our forests," he said.

R. J. Mayers, of the federal agriculture department said farms on the B.C. mainland will be checked this summer for traces of the wily and elusive golden nematode.

The golden nematode, a destructive little potato worm, was discovered last summer on Saanich Peninsula. As far as anyone knows it has been confined to that area. The infected land is being fumigated.

Traffic Toll Highest Ever

CHICAGO (AP) — A total of 542 persons were killed in traffic accidents in the U.S. during the 78-hour Memorial Day weekend, shattering the record for three and four-day observances of the period. The total surpassed the previous record for Memorial Day of 525 in 1963, a four-day weekend.

All the adjectives have been used to describe various sales promotions in the Automobile industry.

While other automobile dealers are curtailing their orders, Plimley negotiates for 107 more new Austin, M.G., Jaguar and Rambler vehicles to meet increased customer demand.

Luna X Silenced

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet satellite, has run out of power, and stopped sending information to earth, the news agency Tass reported Thursday.

Tass said Luna X will continue in orbit around the moon for several years.

Housing Policy Unchanged

OTTAWA (CP) — No major change in government housing policy is to be expected, Labor Minister Nicholson told a Commons questioner Thursday when the MP pressed for increased home-builder loans.

Reid Scott (NDP — Toronto Dantorth) said there is a "drought of mortgage money" and asked whether the minister is prepared to instruct Central Mortgage and Housing Corp to make more mortgage money available.

PAY RATES CAN VARY

Lumberjacks' pay is 50 cents a day in Uganda and $3 a day in Greece, compared with $20 a day in Canada.

Luna X went into close orbit of the moon April 3, was in radio contact with Soviet stations until May 30 and made a total of 219 transmissions, the news agency added.

At the same time, Tass reported some "preliminary conclusions" by the Soviet Academy of Scientists based on data radioed by Luna X. Among these:

As expected, the magnetic field around the moon is extremely weak. Micrometeorites are more numerous in space around the moon than in interplanetary space. There is a heightened irregularity in the moon's gravitational field.

Constable Honored

KELOWNA (CP) — Commissioner G. B. McClellan of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police Thursday unveiled a memorial plaque honoring a young RCMP constable slain in the line of duty.

Constable Neil M. Bruce was shot April 10, 1965, in the Westbank area of the Okanagan, while investigating a report that a girl was being held in a small shack against her will.

He died four days later in Kelowna General Hospital, aged 26. He left a wife and two young children.

When the bullet struck his chest, Constable Bruce shouted to his partner, Constable Kenneth Jones, and warned Jones to get back.

Commissioner McClellan said Thursday Constable Bruce bore a title too often forgotten in today's world—that of peace officer.

"When he signed up for the force," said the commissioner, "he knew he faced a life of danger. But, without a second thought, he immediately accepted this responsibility."

Even when shot down in cold blood, said Commissioner McClellan, Constable Bruce had not thought of himself but of Constable Jones.

"This man will remain in the memory of the force forever. His name will be inscribed on the memorial at Regina, for all to see."

With those words, he unveiled the plaque inscribed: "In memory of Constable Neil M. Bruce, of the RCMP, who

Bankruptcies Costly

By HARRY YOUNG
Business Editor

Bankruptcies in Canada are not growing numerically to any degree but the dollar value of the failures is increasing alarmingly.

The reporting firm of Dun and Bradstreet says that in April Canadian failures rose to 243 from 242 in March, but the dollar liabilities of $18,312,000 were up 53.7 per cent from the previous month's $11,914,000.

In the April bankruptcies were three in the over $1,000,000 class. They contributed $7,000,000 to the total.

Failures continued highest in Quebec where there were 147 of the 243 bankruptcies. In Vancouver the April total was sharply lower than in March.

CREDIT PROBLEM, TOO

A further note on business liquidity comes from the Canadian Credit Men's Association Ltd. which finds that in the first quarter of 1966, its members were having to wait longer to have their accounts settled.

The average number of days of credit business outstanding rose to 50.9 days, an increase of one day from the last quarter of 1965 and three and a half days higher than the 48.7 days of the corresponding quarter of 1965. "Collections have become more difficult in recent months," says CCMA, and it expects the months ahead will continue to present problems. It urges members to pursue a vigilant and vigorous collection policy.

IAC KEEPS ROLLING

Unlike most of its rivals in the financial industry, Industrial Acceptance Ltd. in its most recent progress report has managed to show increased net profits from a year ago.

In the six months period ended April 30, IAC net profit was $1,255,999 (54 cents) compared with $1,182,970 (50 cents) in the corresponding period a year ago when money was much less in tight supply than it has been since last fall.

KITIMAT CHOSEN

Vancouver Wharves Ltd. has chosen Kitimat instead of Prince Rupert as the site of its northern development.

Lack of suitable property and high costs were reasons given by T. G. Phillips, manager.

The company hopes to handle tonnages of metals from northern B.C., Alberta and Saskatchewan in competition with the Port of Vancouver.

DROP IN MERCURY

The price of mercury has fallen, from $775 for a 76-pound flask a year ago to $340, and a leading New York dealer says the 30 per cent drop is the result of an over-supply. Spain accounts for 35-40 per cent of world mercury production.

SCOTS TRADERS COMING

A trade mission from the Scottish Chamber of Commerce is to be in Vancouver June 13 to 19 and several of its members are expected to visit Victoria during their stay on the Pacific Coast.

The mission consists largely of representatives of the woolens, textile, furniture, and Scottish ornament industries.

Leader of the mission is Stewart M. Roberts, chairman of the Council of Scottish holders that the company's stock should be split two-for-one and have called a meeting for June 16 to seek approval.

NEW MONEY FOR B.C.

Two investment trusts owned by Patino Mining Corporation have been listed on the Vancouver Stock Exchange.

They are Wentworth and Hardwig. On Monday Wentworth trading was 137,400 shares at prices ranging from $10 to $10.18 while Hardwig traded 157,800 shares at $30.4 and $30.

The trusts hold investments in leading Canadian companies.

WARRANT VALUE CHANGES

Holders of warrants to purchase common shares of S. Madill Ltd., the Nanaimo engineering firm, should note that after June 30 the subscription rates for the common will be raised to $1.30 a share, from the present rate of $2.30.

NEW GAS PLAN

Northern and Central Gas directors will propose to shareholders that the company's stock should be split two-for-one and have called a meeting for June 16 to seek approval. Northern and Central Gas is the combination of the former Greater Winnipeg Gas Company and Northern Ontario Natural Gas.

The net profit of Bright and Co., Ontario wine-making firm rose to $650,060 ($6.50) in the year ended March 31 from $597,234 ($5.97) in the previous year.

Which whisky do the Jones' really drink?

When it comes to whisky, the Jones' can afford to please themselves.

Yet they don't let others dictate their taste. They have taste of their own.

Which is why it's not surprising that so many of the Jones' drink Bonded Stock.

This is a smooth, mellow whisky with a flavour you don't have to disguise.

One other thing: you don't have to be one of the Jones' to appreciate Bonded Stock.

All you need is a taste for good whisky.

Two Tourneys Year Away

Golf Festival Bargain On Right Now

By JIM TANG

A bargain sale was started Thursday at the Victoria Golf Club, and golfers and golfing fans have until Dec. 31 to take advantage of it.

They won't be able to cash in on it for another 14 months but between now and the end of the year they can purchase admission to a fortnight of golf entertainment for $10.

For that they will be able to watch the Commonwealth golf matches, the Willington Cup competition for the Canadian provincial team championship and the Canadian amateur championship.

All three events will be held here next year in August and the ticket sale was officially opened Thursday at a reception at the Victoria Golf Club at which plans for Victoria's biggest golf extravaganza were disclosed.

It starts Aug. 8, 1967, with the first matches in the Commonwealth Cup matches, and it ends on Aug. 19 with the crowning of the Canadian amateur champion but the committees already have matters so well in hand that it could probably start tomorrow without a serious hitch.

Harry Young, chairman of the Victoria (1967) Golf Centennial Committee, outlined the progress made to date and introduced Bill McColl, chairman of the ticket sales committee.

McColl, informing that most of the approximate $30,000 needed to stage the triple attraction would have to be raised in Victoria, announced that tickets were now on sale.

"We have set," McColl said, speaking for his committee, "a goal of $25,000 in advance sales and I feel certain that we will get the necessary support for these outstanding tournaments."

He made an immediate start by selling the first inclusive ticket to Mayor Toome of Victoria and the second to Reeve Alan Cox of Oak Bay.

QUICK START

That brought in the first $20. Tickets for the week of the Commonwealth matches and the combined week of Willington Cup and Canadian amateur play are $7.50 each. A combined ticket is priced at $12.50 but to get things started early purchasing a combined ticket for the two weeks before the end of 1966 will get a 20 per cent discount.

As of Jan. 1, the combined ticket will cost $12.50. The daily charge for both events will be $2 for early play in each case and $3 for the last two days of each week.

Competing in the Commonwealth matches, to be held at the Victoria Golf Club, are six-man teams from Australia, Britain, New Zealand and South Africa and Canada.

Each team will play the other four teams with two matches daily, four games in the morning and singles in the afternoon, through five days of competition starting Tuesday, Aug. 8, and ending Saturday, Aug. 12. Each of the five teams will be on the basis of two points for a win and one point for a halved match.

It will be the fourth Commonwealth tournament, and the first ever held in Canada.

The matches were started in 1954 at Andrews to mark the 20th year of the Royal and Ancient Golf Club of St. Andrews, and Australia became the first winner. South Africa was the winner at the Royal Johanne-burg Golf Club in 1959 and Australia and Britain tied for the honors at the Royal Sydney Golf Club in 1963.

Following completion of the Commonwealth matches, the scene shifts to the Royal Colwood Golf and Country Club on Monday, Aug. 14, for the Willington Cup matches, run concurrently with the two qualifying rounds in the Canadian amateur.

Nine four-man teams from the 10 provinces (New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island fielding a combined team) will play 18 holes of medal play golf Monday and Tuesday for the provincial team title, decided on total strokes for the 36 holes.

At the same time, other entrants in the Canadian amateur will play the 36-hole qualifying test and the 64 low scorers will qualify for the match play which will decide the Canadian champion.

It starts on Wednesday with one round, cutting the field to 32. A second round is scheduled Thursday and the quarter-finals and semi-finals will be played Friday to set the stage for the 36-hole final on Saturday, Aug. 19.

Tickets, green for the two events, yellow for the Canadian amateur and red for the Commonwealth matches, are now on sale at all area golf clubs. The green one is the biggest bargain and the goal is to sell enough of them by the end of the year to assure everyone that Victoria was a fortunate choice for two of amateur golf's prime competitions.

Joe Manzi and Gary Williams were losers' top scorers with two goals each, others going to Ken Maughan, Gerry Makin and Bill Russell.

Angels Work Overtime But Collect No Reward

Mentioning extra-inning baseball games to California Angels today would be as risky as asking Billy Foster if he enjoyed Monday's Indianapolis 500 car race.

The Angels, still fourth in the American League, lost to Baltimore Orioles Thursday.

But the Angels' sufferings began Tuesday night, when they went 17 innings before bowing to first-place Cleveland Indians, 7-5.

Second-place Baltimore Orioles replaced the Indians at Anaheim Park Wednesday night and the teams again went into extra innings.

And klunk! Down went the Angels again, this time, 9-7, in 10 innings.

So they tried it again Thursday afternoon, and the switch to daylight play appeared to benefit the Angels.

They had a 5-2 lead after four innings and still were ahead, 5-4, after five.

And after nine innings? Yeah, you guessed it — a tie ball game.

Final score — Baltimore 9, California 6, in 10 innings.

The win was Baltimore's seventh in its last nine games. It boosted the Orioles within a game of the Indians, clobbered for the second successive day by Kansas City, 11-4.

Detroit Tigers also gained, with a 7-6 win over Minnesota.

Need Soccer Boss? Make Mine Stein

To get an idea of Jock Stein's reputation in British soccer, try to conjure up a combination of the Blake (Casey Stengel) and the Grant (Tommy Lasorda). Stein, the manager of touring Glasgow Celtic, which plays Tottenham Hotspur in Vancouver Saturday, recently won British sportsman's manager of the year award. In Scotland, he ranks in popularity with star players.

During his playing days, Stein was a centre half, good enough to play for Celtic in the early 50s, but not considered a star. His only cap was for the Scottish League against the English League in 1954.

His managerial career, however, has been spectacular. Dunfermline, his first team, was small and not very fashionable. But it won the Scottish Cup in 1961 and is now one of the best teams in Scotland.

Stein went to Hibernian, the Edinburgh team, for the 1961-62 season. Hibs had finished third from the bottom in the previous season, but Stein took them to the top of the league, and he was once again one of Scotland's better teams.

Stein came back to a safe position in the middle of the league, and he was once again one of Scotland's better teams.

Last year Stein took over the Celtic. This season it won the Scottish League, and reached the semi-final of the European Cup Winners' Cup competition before going out to Liverpool, 2-1, on aggregate. Celtic beat Liverpool, 1-1, in Glasgow.

Stein's team against Tottenham at Empire Stadium could include a number of Scottish internationals. Whether Stein will use his best players is, of course, another matter.

Centre-half Bill McNeill has about 25 Scottish caps and is considered one of the best

Cross Country New Strategy

NEW YORK (AP)—Stupendous, a bang-up fourth in the Kentucky Derby and runner-up in the Preakness, worked an impressive half mile Thursday in preparation for the 98th running of the Belmont Stakes at Aqueduct Saturday.

But trainer Eddie Neely, who has saddled 19 stakes winners since taking over the horses of the Phipps family this year, laughed off attempts to get him to disclose the strategy he will use in an effort to prevent Kentucky Derby-Preakness winner Kauai King from wrapping up the triple crown for 3-year-olds.

"We tried him from behind in Bowie's Gold Cup and the Derby and we tried him in front in the Preakness," said Neely after watching the son of Bold Ruler step a-half mile in 46 2/5 seconds at Belmont Park track.

"None was successful. Perhaps this time we'll try cutting across the infield."

All Rudders Snapped In Storms

The No. 1 whaler crew from HMCS Saskatchewan crossed the line first Thursday night from the 140-mile round-the-Gulf-Islands race.

The navy said the winner would be announced after points lost by each of the five whalers in the race were calculated. Every one of the competitors broke her rudder in the rough weather and had to make repairs.

Lone entry from the ocean escort HMCS Sussexvale tied up overnight at Oak Bay Marina with the Saskatchewan's No. 2 boat.

The other two entries, No. 1 and 2 boats from the destroyer escort HMCS St. Croix, were camping ashore.

Stampless Problem Licked

Thanks to a storekeeper's thoughts on the way to choir practice, View Royal residents are enjoying post office privileges which had been denied them for more than six months.

The new post office in the View Royal Shopping centre, 2610 Island Highway, was officially opened Thursday by Rev. John Vickers.

New postmistress, Mrs. Vera Green, said, "Before I opened this office people had to go all the way to Colwood or the Gorge every time they needed a stamp. We had needed a post office here for some time, but none of the stores would have one."

"One night on my way to choir practice the idea came to me. I actually opened the post office for the people's convenience before the title was on the floor."

The previous post office was in the drug store in View Royal, which closed last fall.

Cycle Artist In Hospital With Fracture

PORT ALBERNI — There's nothing phony about the dangers involved in riding a motorcycle on a high wire, patrons of the Ralph Meeker Carnival presently showing here decided Wednesday night. Monday night aerialist Rudi Berg and his partner, Julianne Neff, were stranded on the high wire when the machine jumped off the high wire.

After almost an hour when they could not be rescued by onlookers, the Port Alberni Fire Department's aerial ladder was called in, and Fire Chief Maurice Smith climbed up to rescue the pair.

Many cynical onlookers muttered "publicity stunt", but owner Ralph Meeker vehemently denied the suspicion.

Rudi Berg declared the mishap was the first trouble he'd experienced in hundreds of performances in Europe and America.

Wednesday night, as crowds watched his performance, Mr. Berg fell from the wire, and crashed to the ground, suffering a broken arm and extensive bruising in the mishap.

West Coast General Hospital officials reported the performer in satisfactory condition Thursday morning.

Hapless Drivers Face New Poser

By JACK MOORE
VANCOUVER (CP) — Wouldn't you know it?

Parking tickets have been abolished here, at least temporarily, but now it will probably cost the city's hapless drivers more if they commit an offence.

Instead of ticketing cars—at a cost of $3—the police department is now having them towed away from no-parking zones and expired meters, at a cost of $5. The $5 is charged by a local towing company.

The whole thing started Tuesday, when city magistrate Les Bewley discovered that a section of the province's Motor Vehicle Act had been deleted by the last session of the legislature.

IDENTIFICATION
What the deletion meant, in effect, was that if the police can't prove definitely that the owner of a car parked illegally, or towed it to someone who did, they can't issue a ticket.

Furthermore, on a mobile offence, police can't just write down your licence number and mail you a summons. They have to stop the car and make positive identification of the driver. So if a motorist can outrun the police, park the car and disappear, he can't be charged with speeding.

UNDER CODE
What he can be charged with, however, is an offence under the Criminal Code of Canada, which was not affected by the legislature ruling. In such cases, the onus is not on the Crown to prove the owner was driving the car.

The ticket situation as it stands now is expected to last until an appeal can be argued about the end of this month.

The stop-ticketing order is expected to cost the city about $4,000 to $5,000 a week and to affect revenue from parking meters, which normally averages $8,000 weekly. Chief court clerk W. W. Edwards was instructed to return all money paid in traffic fines Wednesday. Court officials said later a receipt must be produced when claiming a refund.

Towing —Not Tickets

He said tickets could be issued in their normal way, but proceedings against those motorists who decided to fight their tickets in court would be held up pending the appeal.

He said Section 68 of the Motor Vehicle Act, which requires owners of vehicles to prove they were not operating their vehicle at the time of an offence, was deleted by the legislature last March because it was thought to be redundant in view of other sections of the act.

North Vancouver Board

Strike-Ending Bids Rejected

VANCOUVER (CP) — Proposals aimed at ending or lessening the effects of wage disputes by civic and municipal employees in Vancouver and neighboring North Vancouver were rejected Thursday.

About 1,000 of the 1,500 striking Vancouver outside workers followed the lead of union officials in rejecting a city offer for an interim cash settlement to get them back on the job.

And in North Vancouver, the school board turned down a back-to-work offer by striking school board employees on the grounds that the move would only prolong the strike. The offer to have 180 janitors and clerical workers return to the schools was made Wednesday night by Local 389 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees (CUPE).

The union said the offer was extended because members were concerned that if they did not return to the schools, year-end departmental examinations for students would be cancelled.

The union asked for a written guarantee from the board that those who returned to work would receive the same wage increases as the other striking civic employees when a settlement is reached with the city and district of North Vancouver. A total of 700 municipal and school board workers went on strike May 24 for higher wages. In rejecting the union offer Thursday, trustees said year-end examinations prepared and

Battling Rowdies

Red Police Tougher?

By VINCENT J. BURKE
The Los Angeles Times

MOSCOW — Persistent but unconfirmed reports are circulating that Moscow police, who normally do not carry guns, will be armed with nightsticks and told to use force, when necessary, in dealing with young rowdies.

Several Soviet sources said they understood that the nightsticks, made of hard rubber, already have been issued to police in several other Soviet cities.

If the reports are true, it would be the most dramatic step taken yet in the current campaign to curb hooliganism and other crimes.

The reports coincided with another published plea for restoration to police of power to mete out fines on the spot to those they judge guilty of minor crimes. Police were denied this power five years ago.

The new plea for its restoration came from U. Lukyanov, and more serious acts of police chief of Leningrad. In a signed article in Leningrad Pravda, Lukyanov also urged that sale of vodka and wine by the bottle be prohibited in Leningrad on Saturday and Sunday. He said this would help curb drunkenness and disorderly conduct on weekends.

Future Guarded

GLASGOW (AP) — Striking Scottish seamen headed off a crisis on Orkney Island Thursday allowing a boat to sail there with supplies for its only whisky distillery. The islanders had protested the distillery would have threatened employment but not enjoyment because not a drop is sold until it's several years old. The island has adequate supplies of mature scotch.

The strike is in its fourth week.

Some Soviet youths complain that it would be a blow against freedom if the police are given nightsticks and authorized to "knock heads together" when they see teen-agers cutting up in public.

But there is little doubt that a majority of law-abiding citizens has been conditioned by the press campaign to accept sterner police measures as necessary for good public order.

Gen. Suharto, chief of the general staff and executive powerholder in Indonesia, has been appointed supervisor of the national news agency Antara.

Mayor Toone with Harvey and Totem

Boy's Totem Gift Surprises Mayor

If Mayor Toone doesn't have good hunting, it won't be the fault of Harvey Williams. The 14-year-old Indian boy dropped into City Hall Thursday with a two-foot totem he carved himself. It was a present for the mayor, he said.

He had no particular reason for the gift. He was not celebrating or commemorating anything.

"I just thought I'd like to," said Harvey.

Surprised and pleased, Mayor Toone accepted the gift with thanks and placed the beautifully carved pine totem in a prominent place in his office, along with the other mementos a mayor receives in his official capacity.

Harvey is the eldest of 10 children of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Williams, who live at 2206 Sayward Street. The family comes originally from Nitinat, but has been living in Victoria for several years. Mr. Williams, himself a carver who sells his wares to Victoria stores, designs the totems his son carves.

MONTH

"But I do the carving myself — all of it — with my pocket knife. It has to be very sharp, too — see?" said the boy, displaying a gash on the palm of his hand.

Harvey, who attends George Jay school, started carving, under his father's tutelage, when he was 10. He does intricate work, and the mayor's gift took him about a month to complete.

There will be an official letter of thanks in the mail for Harvey in a day or so.

ANIMALS

Carved in the totem are a beaver, frog, killer whale and the symbol of a hunter.

"It means good hunting," Harvey said.

Theme Song: More

May Weather Witch's Brew

Victoria's weatherman William Mackie went to extremes in the weather he whopped up during the month of May.

From his cauldron at the Victoria weather office he served out potions to suit all tastes.

There was more sunshine than usual, but also more than normal rainfall. There were frost, fogs and record high temperatures, as well as record lows, and winds screamed through the city more than they normally do in May. A southwesterly gale buffeted the city with gusts up to 58 miles an hour on May 26.

To add to the conglomeration, a thunderstorm was reported on May 6.

Temperatures soared to a record May high of 72.8 degrees on May 4. The previous high was set in 1915 when the mercury hit 72.4 degrees.

Thermometers on the 27th plummeted to a record May low of 39.4 degrees. A former record of 41.0 for this date was set in 1927.

Rainfall for the month was 33 inch. Normally Victoria gets 30.

Bright sunshine during the month totalled 314.1 hours, which is 115 per cent of the normal 275 hours.

There was only one day during the entire month when no sunshine was recorded by the weather office.

Fog plagued early-mornings, May 6 and 7.

For all its ups and downs, the weathermen considered May to be a cool customer. The mean temperature was 56.2 degrees, which is 1.5 degrees below normal.

Extra Work Approved

Bastion Surgery $88,000 Higher

Shortage of Cadets Cancels Ceremonies

Tonight's sunset ceremony at the Legislative Buildings by cadets of the Canadian Scottish Regiment (Princess Mary's) has been cancelled because of the lack of troops.

The cadet corps has also cancelled a second ceremony June 21.

The corps' parent regiment will be taking the ceremony on D-Day, June 6. "We'll make up for it then," said regimental commander Lt.-Col. David Coell.

By A. H. MURPHY

Bastion Square will be ready for the tourist trade by June 30, as promised, but behind-the-scenes work will go on for several months and the total cost will be about $88,000 more than the $176,000 of the original contract.

The extra $88,000 will be for Phase 2 of the Bastion project — a phase not envisaged when plans were first drawn.

It will provide rear access for the several businesses in the square. It also will entail cutting an arcade through the Dowell building on Wharf Street, as well as alterations on the north side of the square, including extra paving, landscaping and adjusting levels in buildings and lanes behind them.

The public works committee of city council put its seal on the plans for the second phase last week and council will be asked to ratify this decision, probably next Tuesday.

Because the work is being done as an urban renewal project, the federal government has agreed to bear 50 per cent of the original contract cost of $176,000. The provincial government was expected to pick up the tab for 25 per cent and the city to pay the other 25 per cent out of money allocated in its five-year capital budget scheme.

NEGOTIATIONS

Application will be made to Ottawa and to the provincial government to have the same financial formula apply to the second section of the plan. Aldermen were told Thursday that negotiations alone could occupy several months.

The second phase of the project has been the subject of intensive study for months by the city's firm of consulting engineers, Willis and Cunliffe Engineering Ltd., and many conferences have been held on the matter at City Hall.

DOWELL

It has been an extremely complex question in which the city's plans have had to be reconciled with the supply needs of merchants long-established in and about the square.

An integral part of the plan is the Dowell building. The city acquired this property for $30,000, which is included in the $88,000. The building consists of three segments of one, two and three storeys. It is proposed to demolish the centre, two-storey segment to provide access from Wharf Street to the rear of the buildings on the south side of the square.

This would leave the three- and one-storey sections to be sold, and the sale price applied against the $38,000 total.

Access to buildings on the north side of the square, already there, would be graded, paved and, in some areas, landscaped.

AHEAD

Meanwhile, work on the show-place section of the square is forging ahead. Representatives of R. A. Hall Ltd., prime contractor, said Thursday that it was ahead of its timetable.

The heavy work has been done. The massive, figured-concrete retaining walls at the west (Wharf Street) end of the square have been in place for some weeks and backfilling is going on to bring the level up to that of the east (Langley Street) end.

RESTAURANT

The "museum surround" — decorative paving around the B.C. Maritime Museum — was being poured Thursday and finishing touches put to the restaurant plaza — a sunken, brick-lined, outdoor eating area in front of the Coach and Four Restaurant.

One "instant tree" is in place and several more will be popped in when work progresses further.

Vandals Enter Historic Home

Vandals have broken into the vacant Emily Carr home on Government Street in the last few weeks, and Centennial Society Manager Jerry Gosley is worried that the building will be badly damaged before it can be purchased as a permanent historic site.

The break-in was discovered Thursday.

The house is owned by Liberal MP David Gross, at present in Ottawa.

The back door was kicked in. There was no damage to the interior.

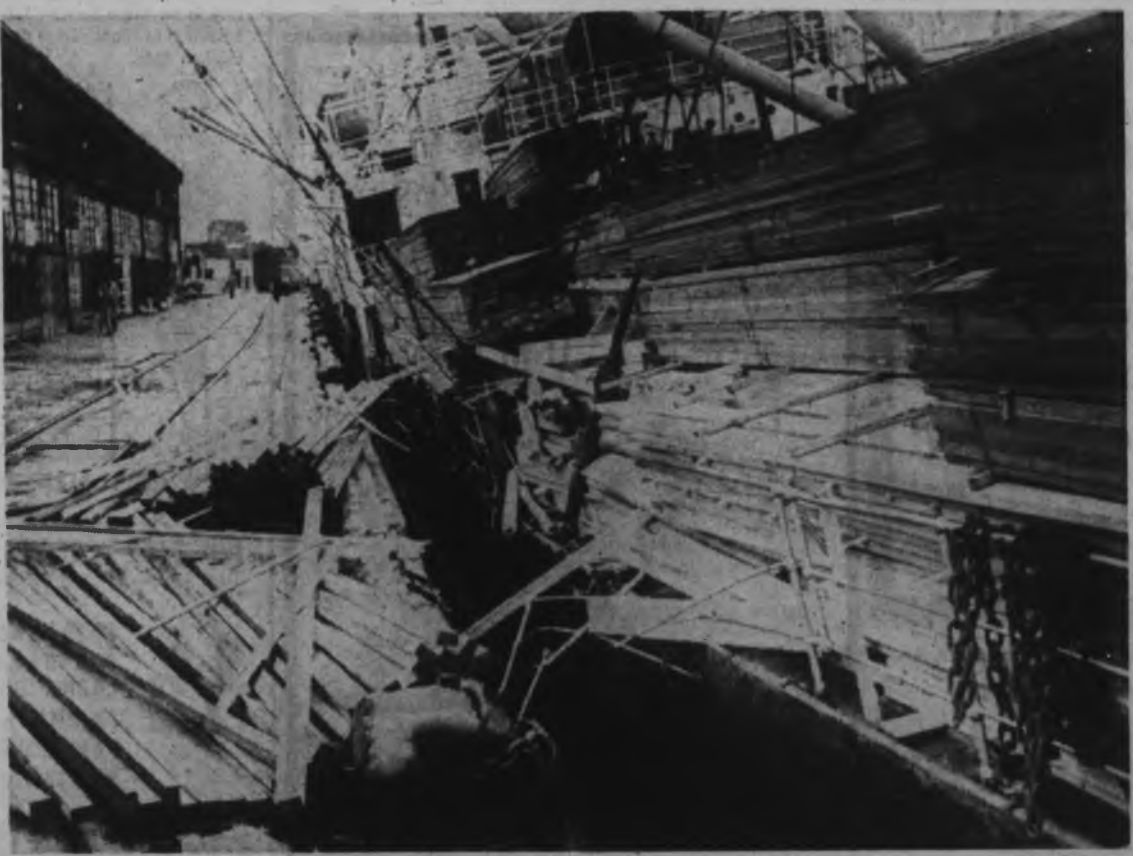

Mr. Gosley said he has requested police protection for the property.

"This is a treasure worth preserving," he said in a telephone interview. "I feel the society should buy the house,

Toastmasters To Gather

Next week in Victoria is Toastmasters' Week. Mayor Toone will read a proclamation at 2:30 p.m. today at City Hall declaring the week dedicated to the speech masters.

Toastmasters from Vancouver Island, the mainland, and from the United States, will gather here for their international regional conference in the Empress Hotel, June 10 and 11.

Emergencies Increase

Emergency ward at St. Joseph's Hospital treated 1,833 cases last month, an increase of 200 over April.

There were 56 traffic cases handled, but this figure was a decrease of 14 from April, the hospital reported Thursday.

Longshoremen Quit Tilting Ship

A lumber-laden, listing freighter sent a gang of Victoria Longshoremen off the job Thursday until the list could be righted after longshoremen business agent Stan Ball ruled conditions were unsafe.

The walkout occurred after the 33,000-ton British freighter Huntsland shed several packages of lumber onto the dock and into the water.

She is carrying pulp and 5,500,000 board feet of lumber for the U.K.

The list was developing as workmen were putting the finishing touches on the deck cargo Wednesday night. By morning she was listing five degrees.

The lumber tumbled into the water when the after rail gave way under the strain of the load.

Pumping in ballast to right the list, the crew brought the freighter back on an even keel early in the afternoon and the longshoremen boarded the vessel to secure the load.

Originally they planned to load 6,000,000 feet, but after the trouble the captain decided to sail with what he had.

Since an incident in Port Alberni when the bulk carrier Archangel listed and spilled her load, killing one longshoreman and injuring four others, the Longshoremen's Union has ruled there will be no loading done on a ship which lists more than three degrees.

The B.C. pilotage, at 2:45 p.m., received word that the Huntsland needed a pilot for 6 p.m. The ship put to sea on time.

But One Dull Day

Young People Urged: Seek Office

Reeve High Curtis urged younger Canadians to take a larger measure of responsibility in all levels of government.

Thursday night.

The reeve spoke to Jaycees attending the B.C. - Yukon Junior Chamber of Commerce convention which opened Thursday at the Red Lion Inn — first major convention ever to be held in Saanich.

"It seems to be that younger men and women generally are assuming a larger measure of responsibility in the affairs of their community, a host of business and service organizations, and government at all levels," he said.

'REMARKABLE CHANGE'

"Surely this is as it should be and the trend is an encouraging one."

The Saanich reeve cited the ages of Victoria's Mayor Toone, and the reeves of the adjoining municipalities as examples.

"What a remarkable change within a few short years from the situation where it was felt that only older men could, or possibly should offer themselves for elected office at the local level," he told the convention.

'FINE COMBINATION'

"I can think of no finer combination than youthful enthusiasm, initiative and drive, and experience and wisdom which comes with the passage of years."

The younger side of the team urges action and prompt solution of problems, while the more senior members are in a position to point out past pitfalls and difficulties.

The winner of the oratorical finals held Thursday morning, with the topic of the problems of the Canadian Indian, was Donald Gordon of Vancouver.

JAYCEE PARADE

The Jaycee parade which started at the CPR wharf and ended at the arena was the main event of the afternoon.

Today's activities will include more business sessions and a dance at the Crystal Gardens this evening.

The convention ends Sunday.

TOPSOIL

By far the cheapest and best for your lawn and shrubs. If applied as top dressing (one yard for every 600 sq. feet) it will, after three yearly applications, develop a thick and lasting turf that feels like a soft carpet. This is how good and lasting lawns used to be made. One yard of our weedfree topsoil, costing about $4, contains over 225 lbs. of organic matter and minerals. In comparison, one sack of chemical fertilizer, costing about the same amount, contains only about 10 lbs. of plant nourishing minerals. Simple arithmetic thus proves that good topsoil is by far the cheapest and best plant nutrient for lawns, both new and old ones. Most important of all, good topsoil is not "a shot in the arm" but IT LASTS!

The price of weedfree topsoil is such that considering the cost of doweeding and the health hazards involved, TOPSOIL THAT IS INFESTED WITH WEEDS HAS NO VALUE AT ALL.

Delegates Urged to Practise Citizenship During Year

By LINDA CRAWFORD

MONTREAL (CP) — Delegates to the IODE's annual meeting were urged Wednesday to combat threats to Canadian unity by practising citizenship during the coming year.

"Right now, I don't know what will happen to our country otherwise," Mrs. R. Douglas Jennings of Toronto, immigration and citizenship secretary for the IODE, told members attending the final day of business sessions.

Mrs. Jennings said she felt disturbed recently after watching school children, who did not appear to know the national anthem.

"Young people must again be made to feel Canada is something they belong to, something that is part of them."

She defined ideal citizenship as "assisting in making Canada an example of a country where people of diverse origins have learned to live with one another on the basis of equality and mutual respect."

Mrs. Jennings reported that IODE work with the Indians has increased. The Canadian Indian, she said, is the country's fastest growing ethnic group, was perhaps worse off than all others.

This was "not because of exploitation or abuse or any of the other possible reasons, but because he is in the midst of the most severe identity crises."

"He has lost his country and he is losing his whole way of life."

"But now the Indian is reading. He is learning and it won't be long, I hope, before the Indian holds some of the highest positions in the country."

Subscriptions amounting to $2,067 were given to the Ganadian Scene, a new service providing the ethnic press in Canada with "authentic information" about the country, she said.

Mrs. Harry J. Brook, world affairs secretary, said another concept towards unity was studied when chapters discussed the IODE brief to the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism.

A letter from Indira Gandhi, prime minister of India, thanked the order for its recent $2,000 contribution to her famine relief fund.

Mrs. J. Neil Gordon of Toronto was re-elected as national president of the IODE at the closing session of the organization's 66th annual meeting in Montreal on Wednesday. —(CP)

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: We are two Ohio teachers whose students are between 10 and 12 years of age. The questions they ask about sex and marriage indicate that they are getting absolutely no information at home.

On occasion we have telephoned mothers and suggested that they discuss various aspects of puberty and the beginning of life with their children. We feel that home is the logical place to learn about these matters. Some mothers expressed shock and disgust that their children would be thinking about "such nasty things." One mother told me, "You can be sure I will punish Johnny if he tries to get me to talk to him about such filth."

If parents refuse to discuss these matters with their children where are the youngsters supposed to learn? What can we do to help them? — TROUBLED.

Dear Troubled: Fortunately sex education is at long last being permitted in public schools — even in Chicago!

Ohio is one of the more enlightened states in this regard. I am ashamed to say Illinois has been among the most backward. I know of some Chicago teachers who heroically have given their students some decent sex education at the risk of getting fired.

Of course, home is the best place to learn about life and sex, but if kids can't get the answers at home, school is the second best place.

Teachers who are asked questions about sex and marriage should answer them frankly and honestly. And they should have the support of their principals and their board of education. They are doing the parents' job and they should receive thanks — not criticism.

Dear Ann Landers: Periodically I receive chain letters. It seems these letters run in streaks. I won't get one for months, then suddenly I'll receive five or six in one week. I have always considered chain letters a nuisance and have torn them up.

Two weeks ago our teen-age daughter received a chain letter which closed with these words: "If you keep this chain going you will have good luck. If you break this chain your luck will be very bad."

Gladys showed the letter to me and asked my advice. I told her to use her own judgment but I let her know that I have always thrown them out. Gladys decided to do the same.

Don't ask me why, but ever since that day, the poor girl has had one disappointment after another. She is convinced that the chain letter she destroyed is responsible for the jinx. Will you please say something in your column to set her straight? — NOT SUPERSTITIOUS.

Dear Not: Of course there is no relation between the chain letter and your daughter's run of bad luck, but it's much easier (and conveniently face-saving) to blame disappointments on a chain letter rather than to accept personal responsibility for failure. You probably can't sell this notion to Gladys NOW, but as time goes on and she becomes more rational and mature (hopefully), she will see evidence on the other side which will persuade her.

Confidential to Baboon Legs: I sympathize with you and I agree with you. A 15-year-old girl should be allowed to "do something" as a matter of good grooming. Either a depilatory cream or shaving will not hurt you.

Two States Organize Fish-Watch

SEATTLE (CP-AP)—Formal organization of a joint Washington-Oregon committee to keep an eye on the big Russian fishing fleet off the west coast of North America was announced Thursday.

Gov. Dan Evans of Washington said the committee will first find ways to continue surveillance of the Russian fleet, now off the lower Washington coast. The committee's main job will be to determine the exact size of the fleet, the areas in which it is fishing and the types and numbers of fish being taken.

HEADS NAMED

Thor C. Tollefson, state fisheries director, was named head of the Washington section and Robert W. Schoening, leader of the Oregon section.

Members of the committee include representatives of the fishing industry and scientists from the schools of fisheries of Washington and Oregon universities, under state control.

Earlier Gov. Evans and his two top fisheries aides flew over a Russian fishing fleet off the Washington state coast, counted 45 vessels and said the flight heightened their concern.

Children's Problems Examined

Mental health, education, and welfare authorities co-operated to study specific children's problems Wednesday in the Sooke school board offices.

"It is hoped that these meetings will be held three or four times a year," said school board superintendent Ernest Hyndman. "Some very effective recommendations for action in individual cases were made."

CASE HISTORIES

Case histories of four children from multiple-problem families were studied by a panel consisting of provincial psychiatrist Dr. Charles Gregory and Dr. P. F. d'Extrude from the mental health clinic; Dr. T. J. Bailey and supervisor Mrs. Maxine Smith of the metropolitan health board; Mrs. A. C. Walmsley, supervisor, and welfare worker Miss R. Adams, Saanich Welfare; and special supervisor William Flemming, Saanich and Sooke school boards.

Victorian Feared Drowned

Douglas Gordon Ward, 18, a University of Victoria student working at the Peace River power project, is believed to have drowned while swimming Wednesday.

Mr. Ward, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Ward, 8667 Aldous Terrace, North Saanich, was last seen Wednesday afternoon when he left camp to go swimming in the Peace River.

CLOTHES FOUND

A B.C. Forest Service spokesman said his clothes were found beside the river later that night. No body has been recovered. Mr. Ward was employed as a survey assistant with a crew marking flood lines on the Peace River project.

Hospital Crews Threaten Strike

MONTREAL (CP)—Some 1,500 Quebec hospital employees have voted to strike unless there is a speedup in contract negotiations. The threatened strike would affect about 12 hospitals, six in the Montreal area. The voters represented about 5,000 workers at the hospitals.

Newfoundland Denies 12-Mile Limit 'Works'

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Dr. Noel Murphy, Progressive Conservative opposition leader in the Newfoundland legislature, sent a telegram Thursday to federal Fisheries Minister Robichaud protesting a statement by the minister that the 12-mile territorial limit is working.

The telegram asked Mr. Robichaud to state publicly that the 12-mile limit as presently constituted is of no practical value to the inshore fishermen of Newfoundland.

Dr. Murphy said his protest followed a report that Mr. Robichaud told the Commons Wednesday that the limit was proven effective by Russian observance of it and that negotiations were in progress with nations holding traditional fishing rights in Canadian waters.

Over Fishing Threat in East

OTTAWA (CP)—A Nova Scotia MP said Thursday overfishing by foreign countries off the West Coast has reduced Canadian catches and the same thing will happen in the East if the Gulf of St. Lawrence isn't sealed.

Lloyd R. Crouse (PC—Queens-Lunenburg) told a meeting of the Commons Committee on fisheries that a reduction last year of 90,000,000 pounds in the Canadian catch in Pacific waters evidently was due to overfishing by nations like the United States and Russia.

In view of this, he couldn't understand lack of government action to prevent the same thing happening in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, where eight countries now fished.

Assistant Deputy Minister S. V. Ozere replied that Canada could be taken before the International Court if it sealed the gulf to nations that had traditional claims. Canada was trying to negotiate solid agreements with these nations.

Fisheries Minister Robichaud said no nation has established traditional claims to herring fishing in the gulf and Canada is seeking to do this.

Another complaint by the MPs revolved around the destruction of inshore nets by draggers and longliners in St. Mary's Bay, Nfld. Canadian draggers were described as the main culprits.

Mr. Robichaud said he hoped for an agreement that would close some areas to draggers, thus protecting inshore fishermen.

"Such views are unacceptable to the corporation," Mr. Ouimet said.

The CBC president also said the corporation will not submit the question of its handling of the removal of the co-hosts—Patrick Watson and Laurie LaPierre—to arbitration.

He added that W. E. S. (Captain) Briggs, senior vice-president, is writing to Stuart Keate to say that the publisher misquoted him in his report to Prime Minister Pearson on the dispute.

Mr. Ouimet said it would be a dangerous precedent to bow to producers' demands that the handling of the removal of the co-hosts be submitted to an outside arbitrator.

LETTER TO KEATE:

Mr. Ouimet also said Mr. Briggs is writing Mr. Keate, publisher of the Vancouver Sun, who took leave of absence to study the dispute, to say that he did not tell Mr. Keate there was an agreement that no changes would be made without the consent of the executive producer.

In his report to the prime minister, Mr. Keate quoted Mr. Briggs as telling him: "While there was no formal document, we had a clear understanding along these lines—that no changes would be made without the consent of the executive producer."

Mr. Keate then said the producers contended the agreement was violated when CBC Vice-President H. G. Walker dismissed the hosts.

CONFIRMED

Mr. Ouimet said there was a general agreement with producers made about a year ago that is confirmed unofficially in the minutes of the producers' association.

David Lewis (NDP York South) said there was an informal agreement and asked Mr. Ouimet whether it would not be a good idea to send the matter to arbitration and permit both sides to start over again.

"No sir," replied Mr. Ouimet, whether the program will continue, which began more than a month ago.

Mr. Ouimet also said that management has decided to renew the contracts of seven Seven Days staff members only.

U.S. Bids Withdrawn
 LONDON (Reuters)—A British defence ministry spokesman says the United States has withdrawn bids open to British and American shipyards to build tugs and minesweepers for the U.S. Navy. Britain had hoped the sale of the ships and other naval and military equipment to the United States would pay for the cost of buying 50
 American F-111 jet fighter-bombers for $2,100,000 ($3,300,

Prosperity
 Stalls
 Socialism
 VANCOUVER (CP)—The current affluence of Canadian society is slowing the growth of socialism in the country, the former national leader of the OCF and now NDP party said in an interview Thursday.

M. J. Coldwell, leader of the OCF before it became the New Democratic Party, said the NDP growth in recent years has been a "slow growth."

"But I think it is due to the economic situation in North America at the present time.
 When you have an affluent society, people don't see the problems for which the NDP offers the only solution. But I wouldn't want to see a recession change this attitude," he said.

Garden Notes

Make Grass Forage

By M. V. CHESNUT

To my mind, the three most common mistakes we make in the management of our lawns are these: We water too often and not deeply enough. We mow too closely. We don't mow often enough.

In our neighborhood, it is a common thing, on a warm summer evening, to see half the neighbors out watering the lawn. This is a soul-soothing occupation, acting the ministering angel to your grass — and its freshened appearance is highly satisfying to the ego. I doubt if it does very much good, though, and such superficial watering may actually do harm.

Hand-watering is no good for a lawn. No one ever had the patience to stand still long enough to really saturate the soil. A sprinkler is a must, and it should remain in the one position until the soil is moistened to a depth of at least six inches. You'd be surprised how much water — and time — that takes.

Shallow, frequent waterings encourage roots to form in the upper layer of soil rather than foraging away down deep, and the first time these daily dribbles are not forthcoming, these shallow roots wither and die. So water deeply, and test the soil with a probe or a knife before you get out the hose again, thereby training your grass roots to plunge deeply for moisture.

Plants breathe through their leaves, moreover, the leaves are food factories in which simple chemical salts are converted into true plant nutrients. If you mow your lawn closely, you are obviously going to remove too much foliage — the respiratory and digestive systems of the grass plants — and you tax the resources of the roots to make good this loss of leaf surface.

In addition, close mowing will scalp bare any little rises or elevations in the lawn, admitting moss and creating a beautiful seed bed for weeds and weed grasses.

Set your mower to cut high — never less than an inch, and 1½ inches is better — so you just snip the tips off the grass when you mow. The surface may look a bit shaggy to an eye accustomed to a close-mown lawn, but you'll have a thicker stand which can resist more and weed invasion, and you'll leave enough leaf surface to breathe and feed the roots.

The first time I suggested mowing the lawn twice a week instead of the usual weekend chore, I was deluged with indignant letters from irate males — in fact, one man told me he was organizing a Husband's Anti-Chesnut Protective Association! Yet tipping the grass twice weekly, with the mower set high, isn't nearly as much work as it sounds, and it thickens the sward into a lush, even stand in which the finer grasses predominate and coarse meadow grasses are discouraged.

With twice-a-week mowing, too, there is no raking, and raking is a far more tedious chore than pushing a power mower. With only three days' growth on the grass, the clippings are fine and short, and can be left on the lawn without any danger of smothering the sward. No grass catcher is necessary, and the fine mowings will insulate the grass roots against summer heat and will build up soil fertility.

Your compost heap may go hungry, but this treatment will give you a lawn that resists weeds, moss and invader grasses; one that remains green through hot, dry spells, and one which becomes soft and springy underfoot.

U.S. Foreign Policy Crazy

Q—(making a note, "marked hallucinations") And how are you doing?

A—(faintly) Extremely well. I'll definitely achieve total victory in Viet Nam by the end of last year. Or was it the year before last?

Q—(making a note, "periods of euphoria") And this year?

A—(grimly) Maybe it isn't going too well right now. But I am prepared to fight on for years and years.

Q—(making a note, "involuntary melancholia") I'm a little unclear. Are you winning or losing?

A—(confusedly) Sometimes one, sometimes the other.

Q—(making a note, "manic-depressive syndrome") But you'll win in the end?

A—(nobly) Oh, I have to. It's not just for me. I'm saving the entire free world.

Q—(making a note, "incipient schizophrenia") Then why do you kill them?

A—Because I love them so much. You see, I have to save them from their leaders. Besides, if I don't stop them there, these Commie peasants

The Little World of SHEILAH GRAHAM

He Got Off—Flop!

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—Because Tony Newley assigned someone else to take his place in the film version of Stop the World, I Want to Get Off, the film was a flop, and withdrawn at several theatres in London before it finished the week. I always believed that Tony and his song, What Kind of Fool Am I?, were the only good things about the stage presentation.

Jane Fonda, who has finished Any Wednesday at Warners, rented a beach house at Malibu, so that she and spouse, Roger Vadim, who did most of their late courting there, can return to it from France, to vacation, and then to fly to Acapulco.

Do you know how Sean Connery lost the lead in the Charlie Chaplin picture? It's because he insisted on seeing the script before signing. While Chaplin was mulling this over, Marlon Brando flew to London and told him, "I'll sign without reading the script." Now we will see who was right. . . . Rod Taylor, the rugged actor from Australia, never stops working. Coming up, Dark of the Sun, for Jerry Epstein. . . . Brando, by the way, has given up or postponed his next movie. It was to have been Bo-Bo. "Not another comedy," he said. Good. I always prefer him in drama.

I have been taken to task for including Olivia de Havilland in the same age bracket as Joan Crawford, Irene Dunne, Claudette Colbert, Bette Davis and Greer Garson. Well, Greer is younger than the others, but Olivia is nearer the group of ladies in their 40s, such as Lana Turner, Ava Gardner, Rita Hayworth and Deborah Kerr. She was 18 when she started—in Max Reinhardt's Midsummer Night's Dream, with a very young Mickey Rooney as Puck. Livvy must be in the chips, because in the past year she has turned down three scripts, among them Joe Levine's Something Beginning With M.

Michael Chaplin finally saw the publication in England of his book, I Couldn't Smoke the Grass on my Father's Lawn. The worst attacks on his father were smoothed out, but the senior Chaplin still emerges as a rather tyrannical parent. One funny bit is when the older Chaplin slaps Michael for dating a woman "twice your age." In those long ago days before Oona, Charlie liked his ladies on the very young side.

Triad Lopes, starring in The Dirty Dozen for Metro in England, has found time to appear on television over there, and to tape-record some songs. He never fails to mention that he owes his career to Frank Sinatra who took a chance on him, and was rewarded with a 5,000,000 record sale for If I Had a Hammer.

Did you know that they always boo Hollywood films or television spectacles when they win prizes at foreign festivals. Even offerings from Julie Andrews and Frank Sinatra. It's traditional. . . . Albert Finney has joined the racehorse owners. He bought four, and they are running in the name of his mother. It's a great sport, if you can win.

Clint Walker, the tall man from Cheyenne, is receiving $100,000 for MGM's The Dirty Dozen. He gets 25 per cent increase from Paramount when he stars for them in the western, Judas Gun. So it seems that Clint is another fugitive from television to make the grade in feature films. Not many do. Steve McQueen and James Garner have been the most successful. I caught James with Leo Remick on television in their movie, The Wheeler Dealers. I had missed it in the theatres. Very good.

Smart Ones Cheat

SYDNEY HARRIS

Cheating is probably as old as testing, and certainly much older than any school system. My contemporaries cheated in exams, and I am sure my father's did, and his father's, too.

There is, however, an interesting and significant difference between cheating in the past and cheating today. In the past it was the poor pupils who cheated, the ones who were afraid of failing unless they were given the proper answers by the brighter pupils.

Today, it is mostly those near the top of their classes who do the most cheating. It is not the dumb students, but the smart ones who need to seem smarter in order to compete for stiffer college entrance exams.

It would be easy to deplore this as a growing moral problem, but I don't happen to think it represents a lowering of moral standards. Rather, it seems to me more of an indictment of an educational and social system which places far too much emphasis on grades and exams, and too little stress on personal and individual considerations.

The youngsters who cheat are not so much rebelling against the morality of testing as against its irrelevance. They don't believe that the tests test very much of value, and they are quite right.

What gives sanction to cheating — even among bright and ethical students — is the feeling that they are being pushed too hard (mostly by overambitious parents) to get a high mark rather than to understand their subjects.

With the vast and unprecedented numbers going on to college today, there is not enough time or talent available to judge the candidates' capabilities on much beside a computer basis: in pop the answers, and out come the rankings. And personal morality simply cannot flourish in so mechanistic an environment: who can consider it a crime to dupe a machine that knows and cares nothing about you?

The mass-production method works well for cars and such, but rather less well for people. An this is particularly true if the mass-production system of exams does not call for comprehension of a subject, but mostly for memorization of names, dates, formulas, recipes and all the rest of what Whitehead has so aptly termed "inert ideas."

If the tests were felt by the brighter students to be meaningful indices of their relative capabilities, and if the social pressures were relaxed, cheating among this superior group would drop abruptly. Until then, what we have is a crisis in competition, not in personal morality.

Buddhists Rebel, Peacemaker Out

SAIGON (UPI) — A 26-year-old Buddhist nun committed suicide by fire Friday in the sixth fiery protest against the government of Premier Nguyen Cao Ky.

The self-immolation came as moderate Buddhist leader Thich Tam Chau, who has acted as peacemaker in the South Vietnamese government crises, resigned his church post under fire from monks and nuns opposed to settlement of the power struggle with Ky.

AT PAGODA
The nun poured gasoline over herself at the small Hai Lac pagoda in Da Nang and set herself afire before a crowd of 200 to 300 people. The pagoda is located about two blocks from the Tinh Hoi pagoda, where rebels gave up their fight against the government two weeks ago. The nun was identified as Nu Dien Dinh.

FIGHT ON
Chau's resignation as rector of the great Vien Hoa Dao pagoda imperiled the existence of the fragile agreement he had worked out with the government to end the conflict.

He had earlier issued a communique claiming that Ky and chief of state Nguyen Van Thieu had agreed to resign when the political settlement reached Wednesday is put into effect next Monday.

Chau's aides said he quit after young monks and nuns rebelled against the agreement and vowed to fight on, burning themselves to death if necessary.

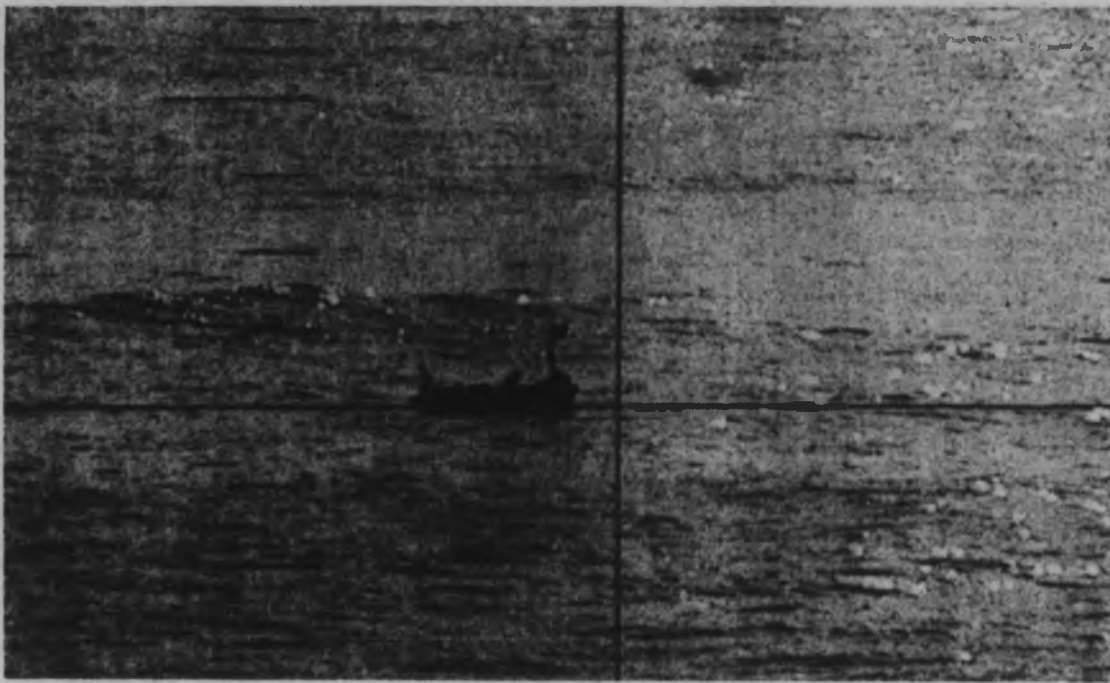

Announcement of Chau's resignation came after stormy meeting at the pagoda on the 2,500th

All Town's Panes Shattered in Blast

The blast destroyed a house at the entrance to the government-owned factory and extensively damaged a row of homes for the elderly nearby.

Bitter Defeat for Bosch

Ex-Trujillo Friend Dominican Victor

SANTO DOMINGO (AP) — Joaquín Balaguer, a reform-minded Conservative and favorite of the late dictator Rafael Trujillo, won the Dominican presidency Thursday night. The result came as a bitter election defeat for the backers of Juan Bosch.

Crying "fraud," pro-Bosch demonstrators gathered in the streets but were dispersed by police and troops swinging rifle butts and clubs and using tear gas.

The election was praised as honest by the 21 Western Hemisphere observers gathered here to witness the voting.

MIDDLE ROAD
Nearly complete returns gave Balaguer, of the Reformist party, 641,332 votes against 406,054 for Bosch, of the Revolutionary party.

Balaguer ran under the banner of the Reformist party, a middle-of-the-road group promising social change.

TROUBLE IN CITY
Considering the trend for Balaguer in the rural area and for Bosch in the urban districts, the margin appeared too formidable for Bosch to overcome in what remained to be tabulated.

Bosch was encountering trouble even in his main stronghold, this capital city, where, although he was leading, he was running behind his smashing 1962 rate.

LOSING IN CAPITAL
Bosch was running here at only 61 per cent of the vote. Experts figured he needed to win 70 per cent—as he did in 1962—to give Balaguer a fight.

U.S. Troops Pulling Out By July 1?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States may withdraw the 5,700 peacekeeping troops it still has in the Dominican Republic by July 1 — providing all goes well in the aftermath of the presidential elections.

This would end a controversial chapter in U.S. diplomacy which began more than a year ago when President Johnson ordered American troops to intervene in the Dominican civil strife.

Quebec Picketing Restricted

Court Bans Dock Threats

MONTREAL (CP) — The Mr. Justice P. I. Cote to hear National Harbours Board Thursday obtained an interim injunction prohibiting striking longshoremen from threatening its employees and limiting the number of pickets at entrances to the harbor.

Lawyers for the International Longshoremen's Association (ILA), which represents the strikers, were summoned to appear in Superior Court before leading to the harbor and to the property of individual shipping companies.

The ILA earlier told Prime Minister Pearson in a telegram that it cannot settle its dispute with the Shipping Federation of Canada and asked that any new talks be with the stevedoring companies in the three strike-bound ports.

The interim injunction, issued by Judge Cote, prohibits picketing by longshoremen on streets

Very Acute Struggle

CHINA PURGES ELITE 'HORDE'

TOKYO (UPI) — China acknowledged today that a widespread purge was underway against a "horde" of scholars and cultural elite who oppose the no-compromise doctrine of world revolution. But it warned the West against "wishful thinking" that Peking would soften its line.

An editorial in the Peking People's Daily said the communist regime had been faced since 1949 with a continuing and "very acute" struggle against those who would modify the policy of total equality and worldwide revolutionary activities set down by party chairman Mao Tse-Tung.

But the editorial said hundreds of millions of Chinese workers and peasants are now sweeping away the "horde of monsters" that have entrenched themselves in ideological and cultural positions.

SPECIALISTS
Among those branded as such were errant "specialists, scholars, authorities and general masters," the editorial said, without explaining the classifications.

The article, broadcast by the New China news agency, appeared directed at westerners who have watched with hope the published statements of some scholars and party officials suggesting a less militant policy both at home and abroad.

COUNTER TO HISTORY
"Dear sir, your wishful thinking invariably runs counter to the march of history," the editorial said.

"The triumphant progress of this great and unparalleled cultural revolution of the proletariat is already scattering the death knell not only of the remnant capitalist forces on Chinese soil, but of imperialism, modern (Soviet) revisionism and all reaction. Your days are numbered."

The editorial told the west that this "stormy cultural revolution" was a development to be expected and was thoroughly under state control.

Two Chances Today

Green Light Again For Gemini

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — Hard-luck astronauts Tom Stafford and Eugene Cernan were given the "go" signal late Thursday for the third attempt to fly their Gemini 9 spacecraft at 6:39 a.m. PDT Friday.

Stafford and Cernan have two chances this time, 96 minutes apart, to get off the ground at last for their rendezvous with a target that was launched successfully on Wednesday and a round-the-world spacewalk by Cernan on Saturday.

The mysterious computer system failure which forced Stafford and Cernan to sit helplessly in their capsule Wednesday while a "space rainbow" slammed shut had been traced to transistor trouble probably due to the overheating of two tiny packages of electronic instruments.

Mission director William C. Schneider said "over 100 tests have been run so far and they've all been successful. So we're fairly certain we've cleaned up that problem."

"The weather looks good and the crew is in fine shape, ready to go."

Surveyor Sends New Pictures

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Surveyor I began sending new pictures from the moon Thursday night as the earth's rotation again brought it within range of a receiving station at Goldstone, Calif.

The second series of pictures began at 8:51 p.m. PDT. The quality was similar to the pictures radioed early Thursday.

(See Page 9)
The 620-pound Surveyor made a soft landing in the Sea of Storms Thursday and radioed 144 pictures showing it had touched down undamaged.

All the first pictures of the new series were close-up studies of the spacecraft. They showed no damage either from the landing impact or from other possible sources such as micrometeorites.

After the first 144 pictures were received, scientists made these projections:

● Surveyor I tends to confirm the photographic findings of U.S. Ranger craft and the Soviet Luna IX that the moon surface is smooth and flat enough to permit manned spacecraft to touch down safely — yet firm enough to sustain their weight.

● The feat put the Surveyor program ahead by one year.

● The landing system of the forthcoming manned Apollo vehicle appear to be correctly designed.

IN GOOD SHAPE

Experts here and abroad hailed the Surveyor experiment as a great informational achievement as well as a scientific masterpiece. Examination of the first 144 pictures showed the 620-pound craft in good shape on a broad, relatively smooth plain after its 6-hour, 250,000-mile journey from the earth.

The television camera was shut down at 4:20 a.m. PDT after the first 144 pictures because the earth's rotation

OTTAWA (CP) — A spokesman for the external affairs department Thursday rejected a Russian allegation that the Canadian government has organized an anti-Soviet press campaign in this country.

Mediator, Air Canada

Airline Staff Agrees to Talk

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Air Line Employees' Association announced Thursday night it has accepted an invitation by the federal labor minister to meet with Air Canada and a government mediator in Toronto today.

The announcement came after the independent union said Thursday it will conduct a strike vote and an Air Canada spokesman said it will continue to operate despite the strike threat by its ground office personnel.

OBLIGATION
"We have an obligation to the public to keep providing service," the spokesman said. "A strike would not affect safety of the airline. It would not involve flying personnel or ground maintenance men. We would fill the office posts with supervisory personnel."

"There might be a slowdown in service but we should continue flying."

VOTE NEXT WEEK
He was commenting on an announcement by the union that it will conduct a strike vote next week among its 1,500 Air Canada members.

Robert Dye, president of the independent union, said negotiations were broken off Thursday after failure to make progress on the issues in dispute.

AGENTS, WORKERS
The union represents passenger agents and other ground workers.

The union seeks two increases of eight per cent each within a two-year contract to bring Canadian salaries into line with those paid on American Airlines.

Co-ed Trims Messy Stanley Park

VANCOUVER (CP) — Discarded University of B.C. co-ed Dulcie Brimacombe, 19, ditched a ride from her suburban home into Vancouver city with her lawn mower Thursday.

Attired in blue jeans and blouse, Dulcie started cutting the grass in Stanley Park. "And I'll do it all week," she said, "because this place is a mess, and it has to be cared for before it gets worse."

The grass has not been cut since the civic outside workers went on strike 37 days ago.

To Break Communication Barrier

Every Child Needs 'Other' Parents

HAMILTON (CP) — Two American psychologists agreed in interviews Thursday there is hardly any real communication between North American teenagers and their parents.

Rev. Roy W. Fairchild of San Francisco said, "every child should have the parents of another family in whom to confide, because most children will not bare themselves to their natural parents. "This is largely because activity in society causes parents not to have the time to listen to their children."

Mrs. Cynthia Wedel, and executive with the National Council of Churches in the U.S., said teen-agers "hate phoniness and they think adults are phony."

Dr. Fairchild and Mrs. Wedel are participants in the second North American conference on Church and Family that ends today. Co-sponsored by the Canadian Council of Churches and the National Council of Churches, the five-day conference is attended by more than 500 delegates.

Mrs. Wedel said there is "a lot of disillusionment" among young people who have served in the U.S. Peace Corps. They return from overseas assignments and "nobody wants to hear of their achievements."

Dr. Fairchild said middle-class parents really want their children to confide in them, "yet keeping a secret is a vital part of a child's development. Parents must realize this."

The first meaningful breakthrough in child-parent communication comes when a child voluntarily seeks to share a secret with his parents.

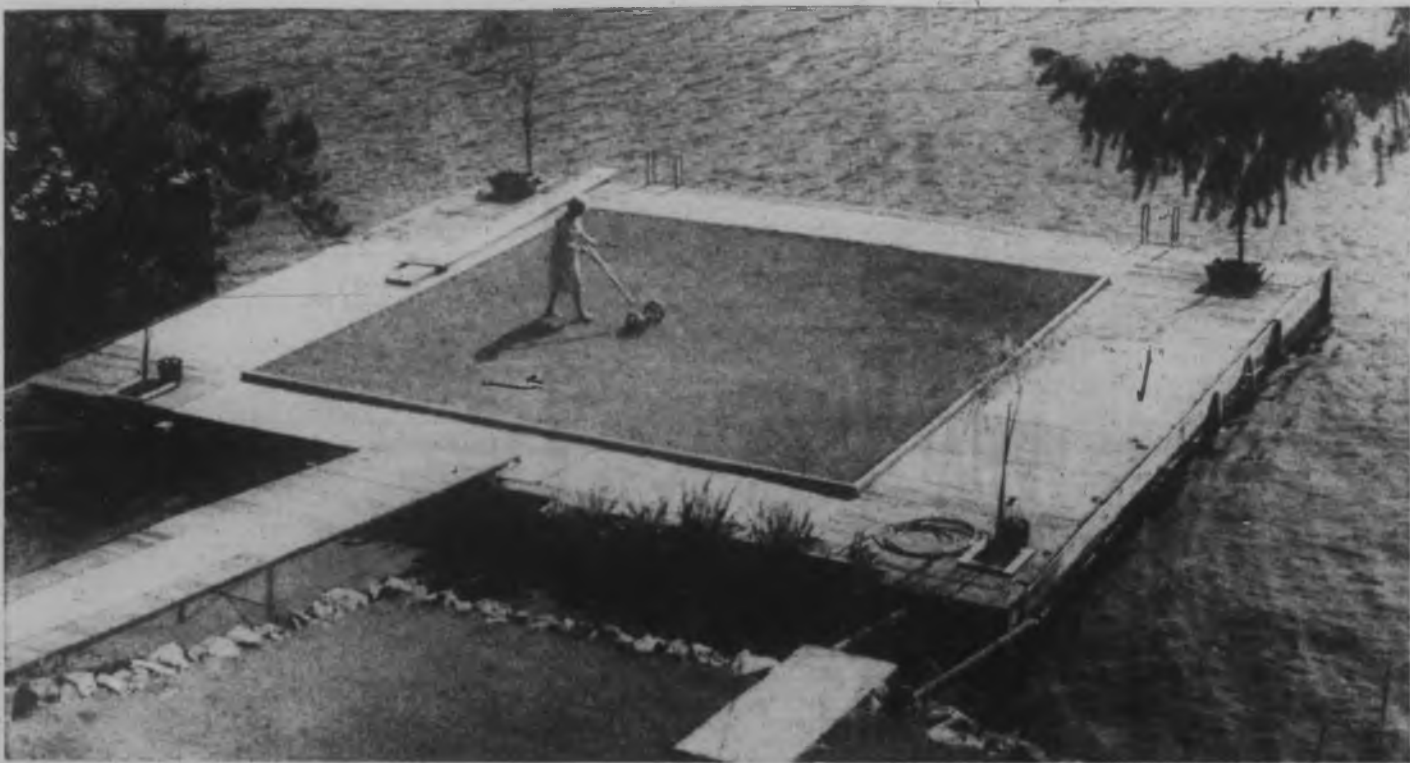

He criticized the present educational system in Western culture for preparing children to participate in industrial and commercial productivity. This results in a quest for success getting priority over a quest for personal significance.

Ambition was important, but one's goal must fit his capacity and ability. Not every one would become a senior executive, although the tendency was to try to become one.

Mr. White now operates his business out of his home on Levean Road, but wants to build an office in Departure Bay.

Mayor Toone with Harvey and Totem

Good Hunt

Boy's Totem Gift Surprises Mayor

If Mayor Toone doesn't have good hunting, it won't be the fault of Harvey Williams.

The 14-year-old Indian boy dropped into Victoria's City Hall Thursday with a two-foot totem he carved himself. It was a present for the mayor, he said.

He had no particular reason for the gift. He was, not celebrating or commemorating anything.

"I just thought I'd like to," said Harvey.

Surprised and pleased, Mayor Toone accepted the gift with thanks and placed the beautifully carved pine totem in a prominent place in his office, along with the other momentous a mayor receives in his official capacity.

Harvey is the oldest of 10 children of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Williams, who live at 2206 Sayward Street. The family comes originally from Nitinat, but has been living in Victoria for several years. Mr. Williams, himself a carver who sells his wares in Victoria stores, designs the totem's his son carves.

MONTH

"But I do the carving myself — all of it — with my pocket knife. It has to be very sharp, too — see?" said the boy, displaying a gash on the palm of his hand.

Harvey, who attends George Jay school, started carving, under his father's tutelage, when he was 10. He does intricate work, and the mayor's gift took him about a month to complete.

There will be an official letter of thanks in the mail for Harvey in a day or so.

ANIMALS

Carved in the totem are a beaver, frog, killer whale and the symbol of a hunter.

"It means good hunting," Harvey said.

One of four turbines at Chemainus

$15,500,000 Plant

Hydro's Big Standby Awaits Trouble

By KLAUS MUENTER
BARE POINT — In silence four gigantic gas turbines at the Georgia generating station of the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority stand by and guard Vancouver Island's power flow.

Located opposite the Chemainus sawmill across Chemainus Bay, the compact generating plant with its fuel storage tanks and intricate switch yard has been a landmark since 1957.

During September the same year the first generator of the $15,500,000 plant was ready for operating and in 1959 the Bare Point station was commissioned.

Skilled workers are dwarfed by the large turbines that work on the same principles as aircraft jet engines. In a comparatively short time the large engines can produce their full output of 76 megawatts or 76,000,000 watts.

At full capacity the turbines' full consumption amounts to 7,200 gallons of bunker oil per hour.

The oil refining plant within the compact Bare Point operation is capable of handling 10,000 gallons of fuel per hour.

The plant's superintendent, Cyril White, said the treatment of the bunker C type oil for the turbines is necessary to prevent scaling and corrosion of the turbine blades.

He said when the plant is in full operation, the fuel in storage will last approximately five weeks.

All four turbines can operate from a standstill to full load within one to three quarters of an hour reaching a wheel tip speed of over 900 miles an hour.

Mr. White said gas turbines are capable of providing quicker service than turbines driven by steam or water.

He explained the peak load on Vancouver Island at the present time is about 450 megawatts per day, of which 150 flow from Vancouver by submarine cable and 300 are generated by hydro plants in the northern part of the Island and the Jordan River area.

The station at Bare Point is the only standby station on Vancouver Island and promptly roars into action in emergencies. Mr. White said the high voltage lines on the island are rated at 138,000 volts and bring power to industries and homes.

The estimated power consumption is about 300 megawatts for industrial and 150 megawatts for domestic use.

He said the pulp mill at Port Alberni, for instance, uses a total of 120 megawatts of which 90 are purchased from the B.C. Hydro and 30 are generated in the mill.

The same amount of power is used in the area from the Malahat south including Victoria.

While the large turbines are at rest, two of the generators are uncoupled from the turbines and act as synchronous condensers for voltage control of the main transmission system on Vancouver Island.

Besides being a stand-by station and stabilizing transmission loads, the Georgia plant also provides power for peak periods or during low river flow at hydro stations. Mr. White said during the week of June 20 the plant at Bare Point will be in operation while maintenance work is carried out on the marine cable to Vancouver.

For 24 hours a day throughout the year the Island's power flow is guarded to guarantee a continuous service for the population and industry.

Tax Appeal

Fallout No Reason

PORT ALBERNI — The B.C. Assessment Appeal Board, which met here in April, has reversed the decision of the local court of revision on a 10 per cent tax decrease because of industrial fallout.

The City of Port Alberni has received the written decision of the court in its appeal against the 10 per cent decrease awarded F. D. Kallstrom, of 216-4th Avenue North, on the grounds of industrial fallout.

The Court also decided that Mrs. H. G. Winter was not entitled to a 10 per cent decrease in taxes because of fallout but allowed the reduction on the grounds her next little property was depreciated by the condition of adjoining properties.

The Appeal Board held that there was no grounds for allowing the Kallstroms a reduction because of the selling price of property in the area.

So far, however, the taxpayers have not been notified on the board's decision, either by the board or officially, by the city.

Mr. Kallstrom said "All I know is what I've heard on the radio." However he did express some surprise that Mrs. Winter had been allowed the original reduction, on different grounds than fallout.

The dilapidated condition of adjoining buildings might well apply in the Kallstrom case, also, it was felt, since the two properties are only a few hundred feet apart divided by a mutual back lane.

Decision on whether or not further appeal will be made rests now with the Kallstrom's lawyer. It is understood.

Ruling Reversed

Victoria Loading

Workers Quit Tilted Ship

A lumber-laden, listing freighter sent a gang of Victoria longshoremen off the job Thursday until the list could be righted after longshoreman business agent Stan Ball ruled conditions were unsafe.

The walkoff occurred after the 13,000-ton British freighter Huntsland shed several packages of lumber onto the dock and into the water.

TO U.K.

She is carrying pulp and 5,500,000 board feet of lumber for the U.K.

The list was developing as workmen were putting the finishing touches on the deck cargo Wednesday night. By morning she was listing five degrees.

STRAIN

The lumber tumbled into the water when the after rail gave way under the strain of the load.

Pumping in ballast to right the list, the crew brought the freighter back on an even keel early in the afternoon and the longshoremen boarded the vessel to secure the load.

SAILED

Originally they planned to load 6,000,000 feet, but after the trouble the captain decided to sail with what he had.

Since an incident in Port Alberni when the bulk carrier Archangel listed and spilled her load, killing one longshoreman and injuring four others, the Longshoremen's Union has ruled there will be no loading done on a ship which lists more than three degrees.

The B.C. pilotage, at 2:45 p.m. received word that the Huntsland needed a pilot for 6 p.m. The ship put to sea on time.

Bowser Boosted As College Site

PORT ALBERNI — The Horne Lake Booster Committee will write to Minister of Education Peterson protesting the proposal to build a regional college at Wellington, and suggest Bowser as a more appropriate spot.

"Take any map and draw a circle with a 25-mile radius with Bowser as its centre, and you'll find the whole area from Parksville to Courtenay, the Gulf Islands and the Alberni is included, with a population of about 75,000 people who would all be within commuting distance of the college if it were to be built at Bowser," the committee affirms.

Opening up the Horne Lake road would make this plan feasible, the booster group asserts, and every student from the Alberni Valley would save upwards of $500 annually, the difference in cost between commuting and boarding away from home.

The Horne Lake Road Booster Committee also says "the Alberni Valley should more forcefully assert its right to be heard and considered in such important matters as the regional college and should join together in the demand for the kind of consideration that our population and industry merit as one of the key industrial centres of Vancouver Island and British Columbia."

The beach house will be built on property formerly held by the Kinamen Club and the Department of Highways at Departure Bay.

The building will be constructed from concrete blocks and cover an area of 960 square feet.

There will be changing rooms for boys and girls, and a room for the lifeguard.

Cycle Artist In Hospital With Fracture

PORT ALBERNI — There's nothing phony about the dangers involved in riding a motorcycle on a high wire, patrons of the Ralph Meeker Carnival presently showing here decided Wednesday night.

Monday night aerialist Rudi Berg and his partner, Julianne Neff, were stranded on the high wire when the machine jumped off the high wire.

After almost an hour when they could not be rescued by onlookers, the Port Alberni Fire Department's aerial ladder was called in, and Fire Chief Maurice Smith climbed up to rescue the pair.

Many cynical onlookers muttered "publicity stunt", but owner Ralph Meeker vehemently denied the suspicion.

Rudi Berg declared the mishap was the first trouble he'd experienced in hundreds of performances in Europe and America.

Wednesday night, as crowds watched his performance, Mr. Berg fell from the wire, and crashed to the ground, suffering a broken arm and extensive bruising in the mishap.

West Coast General Hospital officials reported the performer in satisfactory condition Thursday morning.

FRAGILE BUDDHIST PEACE SHAKEN

SAIGON (UPI) — A 26-year-old Buddhist nun committed suicide by fire Friday in the sixth fiery protest against the government of Premier Nguyen Cao Ky.

The self-immolation came as moderate Buddhist leader Thich Tam Chau, who has acted as peacemaker in the South Vietnamese government crises, resigned his church post under fire from monks and nuns opposed to settlement of the power struggle with Ky.

AT PAGODA

The nun poured gasoline over herself at the small Hai Lac pagoda in Da Nang and set herself afire before a crowd of 300 to 350 people. The pagoda is located about two blocks from the Tinh Hoi pagoda, where rebels gave up their fight against the government two weeks ago. The nun was identified as Nu Dien Dinh.

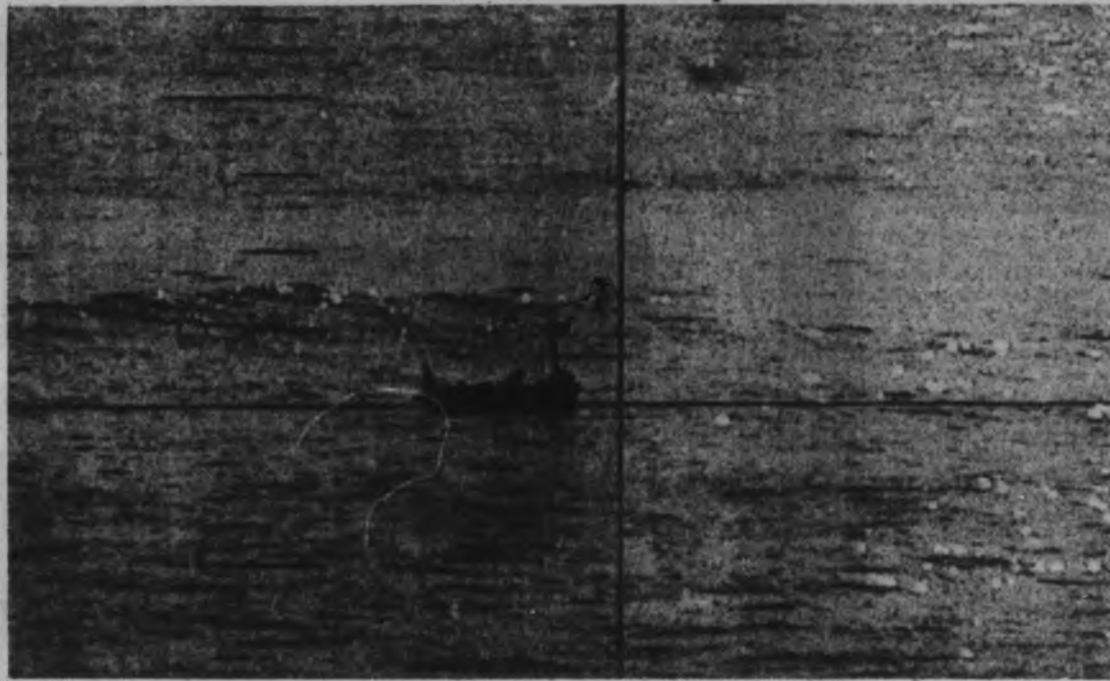

Chau's resignation as rector of the great Vien Hoa Dao pagoda imperiled the existence of the fragile agreement he had worked out with the government to end the conflict.

FIGHT ON

He had earlier issued a communique claiming that Ky and chief of state Nguyen Van Thieu had agreed to resign when the political settlement reached Wednesday is put into effect next Monday.

Chau's aides said he quit after young monks and nuns rebelled against the agreement and vowed to fight on, burning themselves to death if necessary.

Announcement of Chau's resignation came after stormy meeting at the pagoda on the 2510th. Continued on Page 2

Bitter Defeat for Bosch

Ex-Trujillo Friend Dominican Victor

SANTO DOMINGO (AP)

Joaquin Balaguer, a reform-minded Conservative and favorite of the late dictator Rafael Trujillo, won the Dominican presidency Thursday night. The result came as a bitter election defeat for the backers of Juan Bosch.

Crying "fraud," pro-Bosch demonstrators gathered in the streets but were dispersed by police and troops swinging rifle butts and clubs and using tear gas.

The election was praised as honest by the 21 Western Hemisphere observers gathered here to witness the voting.

MIDDLE ROAD

Nearly complete returns gave Balaguer, of the Reformist party, 641,332 votes against 406,054 for Bosch, of the Revolutionary party.

Balaguer ran under the banner of the Reformist party, a middle-of-the-road group promising social change.

TROUBLE IN CITY

Considering the trend—for Balaguer in the rural area and for Bosch in the urban districts—the margin appeared too formidable for Bosch to overcome in what remained to be tabulated.

Bosch was encountering trouble even in his main stronghold, this capital city, where, although he was leading, he was running behind his smashing 1962 rate.

LOSING IN CAPITAL

Bosch was running here at only 61 per cent of the vote. Experts figured he needed to win 70 per cent—as he did in 1962—to give Balaguer a fight.

U.S. Troops Pulling Out By July 1?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States may withdraw the 5,700 peacekeeping troops it still has in the Dominican Republic by July 1 — providing all goes well in the aftermath of the presidential elections.

This would end a controversial chapter in U.S. diplomacy which began more than a year ago when President Johnson ordered American troops to intervene in the Dominican civil strife.

Quebec Picketing Restricted

Court Bans Dock Threats

MONTREAL (CP) — The National Harbors Board Thursday obtained an interim injunction prohibiting striking longshoremen from threatening its employees and limiting the number of pickets at entrances to the harbor.

Lawyers for the International Longshoremen's Association (ILA), which represents the strikers, were summoned to appear in Superior Court before

Mr. Justice P. L. Cote to hear details.

The ILA earlier told Prime Minister Pearson in a telegram that it cannot settle its dispute with the Shipping Federation of Canada and asked that any new talks be with the stevedoring companies in the three strike-bound ports.

The interim injunction, issued by Judge Cote, prohibits picketing by longshoremen on streets leading to the harbor and to the property of individual shipping companies.

Lawyers of the NHB cited reports of violence in the port area Tuesday in making their request for the injunction.

They said Joel Oliveira, 23, a Brazilian navy cadet, was in hospital with a fractured skull as a result of the violence. Another cadet was assaulted.

Another cadet was assaulted.

Two Chances Today

Green Light Again For Gemini

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — Hard-luck astronauts Tom Stafford and Eugene Cernan were given the "go" signal late Thursday for the third attempt to fly their Gemini 9 spacecraft at 6:39 a.m. PDT today.

Stafford and Cernan have two chances this time, 96 minutes apart, to get off the ground at last for their rendezvous with a target that was launched successfully on Wednesday and a round-the-world spacewalk by Cernan on Saturday.

The mysterious computer system failure which forced Stafford and Cernan to sit helplessly in their capsule Wednesday while a "space rainbow" slammed shut had been traced to transistor trouble probably due to the overheating of two tiny packages of electronic instruments.

Mission director William C. Schneider said "over 100 tests have been run so far and they've all been successful. So we're fairly certain we've cleaned up that problem. The weather looks good and the crew is in fine shape, ready to go."

Surveyor Sends New Pictures

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Surveyor 1 began sending new pictures from the moon Thursday night as the earth's rotation again brought it within range of a receiving station at Goldstone, Calif.

The second series of pictures began at 8:51 p.m. PDT. The quality was similar to the pictures radioed early Thursday. (See Page 9)

The 620-pound Surveyor made a soft landing in the Sea of Storms Thursday and radioed 144 pictures showing it had touched down undamaged.

All the first pictures of the new series were close-up studies of the spacecraft. They showed no damage either from the landing impact or from other possible sources such as micrometeorites.

After the first 144 pictures were received, scientists made these projections:

● Surveyor 1 tends to confirm the photographic findings of U.S. Ranger craft and the Soviet Luna IX that the moon surface is smooth and flat enough to permit manned spacecraft to touch down safely — yet firm enough to sustain their weight.

● The feat put the Surveyor program ahead by one year.

● The landing system of the forthcoming manned Apollo vehicle appear to be correctly designed.

IN GOOD SHAPE

Experts here and abroad hailed the Surveyor experiment as a great informational achievement as well as a scientific masterpiece. Examination of the first 144 pictures showed the 620-pound craft in good shape on a broad, relatively smooth plain after its 68-hour, 250,000-mile journey from the earth.

The television camera was shut down at 4:20 a.m. PDT after the first 144 pictures because the earth's rotation

Mediator, Air Canada

Airline Staff Agrees to Talk

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Air Line Employees' Association announced Thursday night it has accepted an invitation by the federal labor minister to meet with Air Canada and a government mediator in Toronto today.

The announcement came after the independent union said Thursday it will conduct a strike vote and an Air Canada spokesman said it will continue to operate despite the strike threat by its ground office personnel.

OBLIGATION

"We have an obligation to the public to keep providing service," the spokesman said. "A strike would not affect safety of the airline. It would not involve flying personnel or ground maintenance men. We would fill the office posts with supervisory personnel."

"There might be a slowdown in service but we should continue flying."

VOTE NEXT WEEK

He was commenting on an announcement by the union that it will conduct a strike vote next week among its 1,500 Air Canada members.

Robert Dye, president of the independent union, said negotiations were broken off Thursday after failure to make progress on the issues in dispute.

AGENTS, WORKERS

The union represents passenger agents and other ground workers.

The union seeks two increases of eight per cent each within a two-year contract to bring Canadian salaries into line with those paid on American Airlines.

Co-ed Trims Messy Stanley Park

VANCOUVER (CP) — Blue-eyed University of B.C. co-ed Dulcie Brinscombe, 19, hitched a ride from her suburban home into Vancouver city with her lawn mower Thursday.

Attired in blue jeans and blouse, Dulcie started cutting the grass in Stanley Park. "And I'll do it all week," she said, "because this place is a mess, and it has to be worse for before it gets worse."

The grass has not been cut since the civic outside workers went on strike 27 days ago.

To Break Communication Barrier

Every Child Needs Other 'Parents'

HAMILTON (CP) — Two American psychologists agreed in interviews Thursday there is hardly any real communication between North American teen-agers and their parents.

Rev. Roy W. Fairchild of San Francisco said "every child should have the parents of another family in whom to confide, because most children will not bare themselves to their natural parents."

"This is largely because activity in society causes parents not to have the time to listen to their children."

Mrs. Cynthia Wedel, and executive with the National Council of Churches in the U.S., said teen-agers "hate phoniness and they think adults are phony."

Dr. Fairchild and Mrs. Wedel are participants in the second North American Conference on Church and Family that ends today. Co-sponsored by the Canadian Council of Churches and the National Council of Churches, the five-day conference is attended by more than 500 delegates.

Mrs. Wedel said there is "a lot of disillusionment" among young people who have served in the U.S. Peace Corps. They return from overseas assignments and "nobody wants to hear of their achievements."

Dr. Fairchild said middle-class parents really want their children to confide in them, "yet keeping a secret is a vital part of a child's development. Parents must realize this."

The first meaningful breakthrough in child-parent communication comes when a child voluntarily seeks to share a secret with his parents.

He criticized the present educational system in Western culture for preparing children to participate in industrial and commercial productivity. This results in a quest for success getting priority over a quest for personal significance.

Ambition was important, but one's goal must fit his capacity and ability. Not every one would become a senior executive, although the tendency was to try to become one.

Car Flattened

Irwin Lyall Recknell, 21, of 1418 Harrison was critically injured early this morning when his car hurtled off Esquimalt Road, across a Pay 'n' Save gasoline station lot, and flattened against a rock bluff.

Police indicated that the car failed to negotiate the turn in the road, and the car was a total loss.
